Economic Figures Gloomy; President Readies Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon polished his special economic report to the nation today as reports of rising unemployment, faltering profits and high interest rates continued to mount.

One government report Monday disclosed manufacturer's profits dropped to their lowest level in 2½ years because of the economic squeeze. And a regional Federal Reserve Bank described the downturn as a mild recession.

Nixon closeted himself in his hideaway office next door to the White House Monday to work on the report, scheduled to be delivered to the nation at noon Wednesday (EDT).

Draft Boards Said Taking Unfit Youths

WASHINGTON (AP) — Local draft boards concerned with filling their monthly quotas often draft physically handicapped and mentally disturbed youths who are unfit for military service, according to a civilian panel.

The panel, appointed to study the Army prison system and composed of six noted penologists, said it found many draftees in Army stockades "who were clearly not fitted for military service."

"The committee is well aware of the fact that some local boards, having trouble filling their quotas, draft youths with physical and mental inadequacies, and sometimes with severe personality and character defects that doom them to almost certain failure in the Army."

No specific figures were given on how many young men might be in this category.

In its report, released Monday by the Pentagon, the panel recommended the Army concentrate on rapidly identifying the unfit and unsuitable and discharging them before they get into trouble.

The panel said stockade prisoners who were drafted make up about 36 per cent of the total Army prison population of about 7,000. Draftees constitute 54 per cent of the Army.

The great majority—between 80 to 90 per cent—of Army prisoners are charged or convicted of being absent without leave, the panel said. Of these, many were unstable and unable to withstand the tensions of military life.

Boy, 9, Drowns On Fishing Trip

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (AP)—The body of Jack Keller, 9, Columbus, Ohio, who drowned Sunday while fishing with his father in Goulais Lake, was recovered by divers Monday.

The search for the boy's father, George Keller, continued today. The boat the two were fishing from was found earlier floating in the lake, about 50 miles north of the Sault.

Crofters Agent Says Herbert Thanked Firm For Its 'Support'

Court Ruling Puts Draft Officials On The Spot

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Selective Service System, told by the Supreme Court it can't force a man to fight in violation of his conscience, was left wondering today how to separate sincere objectors from the phonies.

It was also left wondering what impact, if any, Monday's court ruling on conscientious objection would have on the draft. Selective Service Director Curtis W. Tarr called in his staff for consultation after he heard of the decision and scheduled a news conference today to discuss the impact of the ruling.

On the surface, the decision seemed to make little change in existing guidelines, but Selective Service spokesmen said they had no statistics on the grounds claimed by conscientious objectors and thus no way to measure the effects of subtle policy shifts.

Draft law provides for exemption from military service of men who "by reason of religious training and belief" oppose participation "in war in any form."

In 1965, the Supreme Court—in the landmark United States vs. Seeger case—ruled that an objector need not believe in the traditional concept of God but only in some overriding principle holding a similar place in his life.

On Monday, the high court reversed the conviction of Elliott A. Welsh II, who had refused military induction on grounds of his belief "that human life is valuable in and of itself . . . I will not injure or kill another human being."

Citing a lower court finding that Welsh held his beliefs "with the strength of more traditional religious convictions," the court decided he was entitled to conscientious objector status according to this Seeger principle.

The court's Monday decision concluded the law permits exemption of those "whose consciences spurred by deeply held moral, ethical, or religious beliefs, would give them no rest or peace if they allowed themselves to become a part of an instrument of war."

The court decision appeared to give those seeking conscientious objector status more leeway to defend their claims, for it accepted Welsh's arguments based on "political, sociological or philosophical views."

The law, as written, specifically excluded those as grounds of conscientious objection.

The Supreme Court, however, said that clause does not rule out people with strong opinions about such matters, as long as their pacifist views are held with "religious" fervor, as required by the Seeger decision.

In 1965, the court suggested that its new guideline—belief similar in strength to traditional religion—would provide a test "simple of application . . . essentially an objective one."

Says Personal Contact Came In Late April

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A central figure in the state investment scandal has said Treasurer John D. Herbert once thanked him and two of his partners for "our substantial support."

Gerald A. Donahue, an officer in Crofters, Inc., a finder's firm involved in arranging large, unsecured loans from the state, made the statement in a deposition released today by Auditor Roger Cloud.

The deposition is included in an audit Cloud ordered of commercial paper investments by the treasurer's office. Crofters officers made contributions to the political campaigns of both Herbert, Republican nominee for attorney general, and to Sen. Robin Turner, GOP nominee for treasurer.

Cloud, Republican nominee for governor, has demanded that Herbert and Turner get off the November ticket. Both have declined.

Cloud recommended in the audit that the state either get out of the commercial paper investment field or require approval of such investments by the Board of Deposit before the treasurer makes an investment.

Cloud also suggested that interest earned on state investments be paid into the state's debt service fund.

Officers of Crofters Inc. and the DeGee Corp., the two firms involved in arranging loans for high fees from the state treasury, contributed $15,000 to Herbert for his campaign for attorney general.

Herbert has denied he knew of the contributions until May 18, when Columbus attorney Jack Chester, representing Donahue, asked that the money be returned.

Postal Reform Battle Starts In U.S. House

Strike Threatened By Mail Carriers If Measure Stalls

WASHINGTON (AP) — The battle to reform the nation's postal system and fatten each mailman's wallet is opening in the House today under the threat of another nationwide mail strike.

James H. Rademacher, president of the National Association of Letter Carriers, predicted Monday the House will pass the landmark legislation this week. But he warned:

"If the House rejects the bill there definitely will be a strike next week."

At the same time, Rademacher said there will be "hit and run" walkouts in the states of senators who participate in a threatened filibuster when the legislation goes to the Senate.

"When the senators start talking," he said in an interview, "we start walking."

After a New York local threatened to strike last week, Rademacher notified national letter carrier leaders that he will ask for authority to call a nationwide strike if the House defeats the reform and pay raise legislation.

The legislation would turn the mails over to an independent U.S. Postal Service aimed at putting them on a self-paying basis by 1978 and would boost mailmen's salaries 8 per cent retroactive to April 18.

The major House fights are expected over potential compulsory union membership for postal workers under the new system, and the retroactive pay.

Supporters are confident of passage, although no headcounts have been taken and no hard estimates have been made of how many votes will be influenced by the union membership battle.

Approval of the landmark legislation would end Congress' 181-year control over postal operations and set up the independent postal service agency within the government with corporation-like powers to set its own mail rates, negotiate pay and working conditions with unions and sell bonds.

Reds Fighting In Kompong Speu Vanish As Allies Enter

KOMPONG SPEU, Cambodia (AP) — South Vietnamese and Cambodian troops and armor smashed into this provincial capital and regional military headquarters today to find the large enemy force they had hoped to trap had vanished.

A Cambodian general said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong had retreated south and west of Kompong Speu, which is 30 miles southwest of Phnom Penh, but still had a stranglehold on Highway 4, Phnom Penh's only access route to the coast and to Cambodia's lone oil refinery there.

Cambodian Brig. Gen. Sohen Fernandez told a newsmen the elements of five enemy divisions were now in place north, west and south of Phnom Penh, apparently preparing for a push against the capital. Fernandez did not predict when the drive might start.

Refugees reaching Phnom Penh earlier from Kompong Speu said Communist soldiers in the force that occupied the town had boasted of plans to attack Phnom Penh on Thursday. A Cambodian government spokesman termed these reports "rumors," but defenses around the capital were being hastily strengthened. Diplomats in Phnom Penh have been predicting rocket attacks but doubt the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese will try an infantry assault.

Cambodian and Vietnamese commanders gave varying estimates of the number of bodies found in Kompong Speu. The most mentioned figure was 150, but a Vietnamese general said a third of these apparently were Cambodian troops killed when the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese captured the town Saturday.

South Vietnamese officials in Saigon said their 4,000-man force which joined in the battle at Cambodian request killed 183 of the enemy and took three prisoners, while suffering four killed and 22 wounded.

The South Vietnamese troops pushed their way into the town from the south Monday night. On reaching the central market area today, they began collecting everything portable they could get their hands on.

The hearing for Deputy Dist. Atty. Aaron H. Stovitz was scheduled before the opening of the murder-conspiracy trial of four hippie-style clan members in the slayings of the actress and six others.

Paul Fitzgerald, attorney for defendant Patricia Krenwinkel, 22, filed the contempt charge. The maximum sentence is a $500 fine and three days in jail.

Opening of the trial was delayed Monday as Fitzgerald—joined by attorneys for Charles Manson, 35, Leslie Van Houten, 20, and Susan Atkins, 31—asked dismissal of all charges because of the "insidious and virulent influence of pretrial publicity."

Superior Court Judge Charles H. Older asked defense and prosecution to file declarations and evidence concerning the motion and said he would consider it until June 23. Jury selection will proceed meanwhile.

The interview in question appeared in The Rolling Stone, a newspaper published in San Francisco and appealing largely to young people. It purports to present the prosecution's evidence against Manson's roving clan. Fitzgerald says it includes details of the bizarre killings not made public before.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Vincent T. Bugliosi, co-prosecutor, said in court that the interview was not so widely disseminated as to affect the trial. The paper claims a circulation of 325,000.

Later, Bugliosi told newsmen the Stovitz interview had been off the record and shouldn't have been published.

Prosecutor Faces Contempt For Tate Case Interview

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The chief prosecutor in the Sharon Tate murder case faced a contempt of court hearing today on defense charges that he violated a judicial order by giving a published pretrial interview.

"Let's face it," said Bugliosi, "Linda Kasabian will probably be a star witness for the prosecution, and as such she will be granted immunity."

Kasabian, 21, was formally severed from that of the others. The judge postponed until Aug. 17 a hearing on her trial date. But her attorney and the prosecution said she probably would not go to trial.

Several persons attending the annual session of the West Ohio Conference of the United Methodist Church walked out of Hoover Auditorium here Monday night during a speech by a black professor in which he railed against "white racism."

The speaker was Dr. James H. Cone, assistant professor of theology at Union Theological Seminary in New York, who said "the work of black liberation is the work of God himself."

He said that God is on the side of the oppressed blacks and against the white oppressors and at one point declared that white American theology has served the oppressors.

"The black experience is when he (the black man) throws a Molotov cocktail into a white-owned building and watches it burn," he declared. Then after a brief pause he added: "Well, he has to start some place."

At this point there were boos from several members of the audience of about 3,000 and about 100 persons walked out of the auditorium.

Dr. Thomas O. Paine, NASA administrator, said the agency would study the recommendations and decide within a few weeks what changes to make.

Funnel Clouds Reported In Sky

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thunderstorms belted wide areas of the Great Plains and the Midwest today with high wind, heavy rain and hail.

Tornadoes or funnel clouds were sighted during the night at numerous locations from Nebraska to Ohio. Severe weather warnings of one type or another were in effect for much of the region from the central Plains to the Great Lakes in the predawn hours.

Winds of 92 miles an hour were clocked by the Weather Bureau at Norfolk, Neb., before power was lost. Trailers were overturned at Norfolk, Arlington and at Pleasant Dale west of Lincoln.

No injuries were reported, either in the Nebraska storms or in severe weather elsewhere over the midcontinent.

Winds up to 70 an hour were accompanied by hail at Sioux City, Iowa. Many trees were reported torn down by the wind at Scotland, S.D., some 70 miles northwest of Sioux City.

Nearly 2½ inches of rain drenched Mankato, in north central Kansas, in two hours. The eastern Missouri community of Elsberry was hit by 3 inches of rain in a half-hour thunderstorm late Monday.

Three to 5 inches swamped sections of central and southern Illinois through Monday.

Hailstorms the size of golf balls bombarded Sioux Falls, S.D., similarly large hail pounded parts of Cleveland, in north central Ohio, late Monday.

The storminess generally occurred along a frontal area dividing cool air in the Rockies and western Plains and warm and humid conditions in the remainder of the midcontinent.

Showers dampened parts of the Northeast and the Pacific Northwest but most of the regions outside the midcontinent were dominated by fair and pleasant weather.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 40 at Evanston, Wyo., to 90 at El Paso, Tex.

Apollo 13 Blast Blamed On Human, Mechanical Error

By HOWARD BENEDICT

AP Aerospace Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The detective work has been done; the Apollo 13 moonship explosion has been blamed on human and mechanical error. The space agency now must decide how to prevent any recurrence.

How well it does will determine the course of the Apollo program. Because of the explosion, Apollo 14 already has been delayed two months, until Dec. 3, and it may slide into 1971.

Other Apollo flights may be stretched out or eliminated.

A special review board Monday concluded a two-month investigation into the oxygen tank blast that endangered three astronauts 205,000 miles from home and canceled man's third attempt to walk on the moon.

Its highly critical report scored the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, North American Rockwell Corp., and Beech Aircraft Corp., for "a serious oversight" in the design and testing of the oxygen tank.

North American Rockwell is prime contractor for the Apollo command and service modules and Beech built Apollo 13's two service module oxygen tanks.

North American also received much of the blame when another review board reported in 1967 on the launch pad fire that killed the three Apollo 1 astronauts at Cape Kennedy, Fla.

A spokesman for North American said, "We certainly would not disagree with the findings of the board," but declined comment on specific conclusions until company officials had time to study the report.

"If there are deficiencies in the design of our system," the spokesman added, "we'll do everything we can to work with NASA and correct them."

The Apollo 13 review board found the mission "constituted a near disaster, averted only by outstanding performance on the part of the crew and the ground control team which supported them."

The board recommended several design changes for future flights, including the removal of electrical components and combustible materials from inside the oxygen tanks and rigorous testing, checking and qualification of the redesigned systems.

Dr. Thomas O. Paine, NASA administrator, said the agency would study the recommendations and decide within a few weeks what changes to make.

"We will not fly Apollo 14 to the moon until we are confident that we have done everything necessary to eliminate the conditions that caused or contributed to the problem on Apollo 13," Paine said.

Edgar M. Cortright, chairman of the eight-member board which prepared the 914-page report, was asked if he thought the recommendations would permit a December launch of Apollo 14.

"My own view is that it will be a strenuous schedule, but they've been met before," he replied. The board said the chain of events leading to the April 13 explosion started at the Beech plant in Boulder, Colo., when the oxygen tank was completed and shipped to the North American Rockwell plant in Downey, Calif., with "a loosely fitting fill tube assembly."

At Downey, the platform on which the tank was mounted was dropped accidentally about an inch, and the report said this probably jarred and displaced the loose assembly.

Because of the displaced assembly, the launch team had trouble draining liquid oxygen from the tank during a test two (Continued on Page 12)

Grobman said in a sworn statement released by State Auditor Roger Cloud that Herbert thanked us for our contribution." Donahue said Herbert thanked them for "our substantial support."

Griffith said Herbert "thanks us for our support, which, so far as I was concerned at the time, was a representation of an earlier contribution that we had made."

The statements were part of a report released by Cloud on his special audit of the treasury department's commercial paper investments.

Crofters was a finder firm that collected fees for steering businesses to the treasurer's office for more than $20 million in unsecured commercial loans.

Profits reached the lowest level in 2½ years, the agencies said in their quarterly report.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis broke with its parent Federal Reserve Board and 11 sister banks by calling the current economic downturn a recession.

The Minneapolis bank said in its monthly statistical report that Minnesota and its neighboring states are "feeling the effects of the mild recession currently in progress in the nation as many business indicators are displaying characteristics of a downturn."

A White House economist, appearing before a congressional hearing, predicted no decline in interest rates or unemployment for the remainder of the year.

Herbert Stein, a member of the Council of Economic Advisors, said the 5 per cent unemployment rate should continue and "rates of interest will decline but a little."

However, he said, "We believe the rate of inflation will be subsiding in this year."

The truckloads of recovered goods were taken to the regional military headquarters and piled in the center of the parade ground. There Cambodian soldiers picked it over.

The major fighting in Kompong Speu occurred around the provincial headquarters building and the regional military headquarters and barracks. The provincial headquarters was reduced to a shell by artillery, while the barracks areas were severely damaged.

Prosecutor Faces Contempt For Tate Case Interview

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The chief prosecutor in the Sharon Tate murder case faced a contempt of court hearing today on defense charges that he violated a judicial order by giving a published pretrial interview.

The hearing for Deputy Dist. Atty. Aaron H. Stovitz was scheduled before the opening of the murder-conspiracy trial of four hippie-style clan members in the slayings of the actress and six others.

Paul Fitzgerald, attorney for defendant Patricia Krenwinkel, 22, filed the contempt charge. The maximum sentence is a $500 fine and three days in jail.

Opening of the trial was delayed Monday as Fitzgerald—joined by attorneys for Charles Manson, 35, Leslie Van Houten, 20, and Susan Atkins, 21—asked dismissal of all charges because of the "insidious and virulent influence of pretrial publicity."

LAKESIDE, Ohio (AP) — Several persons attending the annual session of the West Ohio Conference of the United Methodist Church walked out of Hoover Auditorium here Monday night during a speech by a black professor in which he railed against "white racism."

The speaker was Dr. James H. Cone, assistant professor of theology at Union Theological Seminary in New York, who said "the work of black liberation is the work of God himself."

He said that God is on the side of the oppressed blacks and against the white oppressors and at one point declared that white American theology has served the oppressors.

"The black experience is when he (the black man) throws a Molotov cocktail into a white-owned building and watches it burn," he declared. Then after a brief pause he added: "Well, he has to start some place."

At this point there were boos from several members of the audience of about 3,000 and about 100 persons walked out of the auditorium.

Funnel Clouds Reported In Sky

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Thunderstorms belted wide areas of the Great Plains and the Midwest today with high wind, heavy rain and hail.

Tornadoes or funnel clouds were sighted during the night at numerous locations from Nebraska to Ohio. Severe weather warnings of one type or another were in effect for much of the region from the central Plains to the Great Lakes in the predawn hours.

Winds of 92 miles an hour were clocked by the Weather Bureau at Norfolk, Neb., before power was lost. Trailers were overturned at Norfolk, Arlington and at Pleasant Dale west of Lincoln.

No injuries were reported, either in the Nebraska storms or in severe weather elsewhere over the midcontinent.

Winds up to 70 an hour were accompanied by hail at Sioux City, Iowa. Many trees were reported torn down by the wind at Scotland, S.D., some 70 miles northwest of Sioux City.

Nearly 2½ inches of rain drenched Mankato, in north-central Kansas, in two hours. The eastern Missouri community of Elsberry was hit by 3 inches of rain in a half-hour thunderstorm late Monday.

Three to 5 inches swamped sections of central and southern Illinois through Monday.

Hailstorms the size of golf balls bombarded Sioux Falls, S.D., similarly large hail pounded parts of Cleveland, in north-central Ohio, late Monday.

The storminess generally occurred along a frontal area dividing cool air in the Rockies and western Plains and warm and humid conditions in the remainder of the midcontinent.

Showers dampened parts of the Northeast and the Pacific Northwest but most of the regions outside the midcontinent were dominated by fair and pleasant weather.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 40 at Evanston, Wyo., to 90 at El Paso, Tex.

Apollo 13 Blast Blamed On Human, Mechanical Error

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The detective work has been done: the Apollo 13 moonship explosion has been blamed on human and mechanical error. The space agency now must decide how to prevent any recurrence.

How well it does will determine the course of the Apollo program. Because of the explosion, Apollo 14 already has been delayed two months, until Dec. 3, and it may slide into 1971. Other Apollo flights may be stretched out or eliminated.

A special review board Monday concluded a two-month investigation into the oxygen tank blast that endangered three astronauts 205,000 miles from home and canceled man's third attempt to walk on the moon.

Its highly critical report scored the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, North American Rockwell Corp., and Beech Aircraft Corp., for "a serious oversight" in the design and testing of the oxygen tank.

North American Rockwell is prime contractor for the Apollo command and service modules and Beech built Apollo 13's two service module oxygen tanks.

North American also received much of the blame when another review board reported in 1967 on the launch pad fire that killed the three Apollo 1 astronauts at Cape Kennedy, Fla.

A spokesman for North American said, "We certainly would not disagree with the findings of the board," but declined comment on specific conclusions until company officials had time to study the report.

"If there are deficiencies in the design of our system," the spokesman added, "we'll do everything we can to work with NASA and correct them."

The Apollo 13 review board found the mission "constituted a near disaster, averted only by outstanding performance on the part of the crew and the ground control team which supported them."

The board recommended several design changes for future flights, including the removal of electrical components and combustible materials from inside the oxygen tanks and rigorous testing, checking and qualification of the redesigned systems.

Dr. Thomas O. Paine, NASA administrator, said the agency would study the recommendations and decide within a few weeks what changes to make.

"We will not fly Apollo 14 to the moon until we are confident that we have done everything necessary to eliminate the conditions that caused or contributed to the problem on Apollo 13," Paine said.

Edgar M. Cortright, chairman of the eight-member board which prepared the 914-page report, was asked if he thought the recommendations would permit a December launch of Apollo 14.

"My own view is that it will be a strenuous schedule, but they've been met before," he replied.

The board said the chain of events leading to the April 13 explosion started at the Beech plant in Boulder, Colo., when the oxygen tank was completed and shipped to the North American Rockwell plant in Downey, Calif., with "a loosely fitting fill tube assembly."

At Downey, the platform on which the tank was mounted was dropped accidentally about an inch, and the report said this probably jarred and displaced the loose assembly.

Because of the displaced assembly, the launch team had trouble draining liquid oxygen from the tank during a test two (Continued on Page 12)

Groban said in a sworn statement released by State Auditor Roger Cloud that Herbert thanked us for our contribution."

Griffith said Herbert "thanks us for our support, which, so far as I was concerned at the time, was a representation of an earlier contribution that we had made."

The statements were part of a report released by Cloud on his special audit of the treasury department's commercial paper investments.

Crofters was a finder firm that collected fees for steering businesses to the treasurer's office for more than $20 million in unsecured commercial loans.

his two partners, Harry Groban and Sidney Griffith, while all three were in the treasurer's office.

"Mr. Herbert acknowledged and thanked us for our substantial support," Donahue said. "He did not directly discuss a contribution."

"I took his answer to be an acknowledgement of the fact we were supporting his campaign," Donahue said the incident occurred late in April. Groban, in his deposition, said Herbert walked in an thanked them for the contribution "around the week of April 20."

Griffith said said under oath that Herbert once walked into the office of Robert Gardner, ousted deputy treasurer, and thanked them for the support. "As far as I was concerned at the time, (it) was a representation of an earlier contribution that we had made," Griffith said.

Cloud said the state has never lost money on the transactions. He said the interest alone on the loans will bring in an estimated $47 million in 1970.

But, he said, the loans could be criticized for two reasons: —They at times exceed the $50 million limitation set by state law.

—There was never any justification for allowing a firm of the type of Crofters to serve as an agent in the investments. "Transactions should have been made through a firm which was licensed to do business as an agent or broker," Cloud said.

"The purchases of commercial notes should have been accomplished with a licensed broker and met the legal requirement."

Nixon Backers Test Senate Feeling On Cambodia Curbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration forces are testing political winds in the Senate, looking for signs of support for a final assault on proposed Cambodian war curbs.

Assistant Republican Leader Robert P. Griffin of Michigan was reported seeking two or three votes to put across an amendment to free President Nixon to finance operations of other nations aiding the shaky Cambodian government.

U.S. Physician Freed By Arab Guerrillas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

American physician Dr. William Paul Shrum was released by Arab guerrillas today after being held for a week, the Jordanian Foreign Ministry announced.

Shrum was handed over to the ministry which delivered him to the U.S. Embassy. He is being flown out of Jordan on the first available plane to Beirut, Lebanon.

Shrum, 45, was one of 62 foreigners held as hostages last week in Amman by Palestinian guerrillas during the fighting between the guerrillas and Jordanian army troops.

The Marxist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine released the rest of the hostages last Friday from the two Amman hotels where they were being held. But the commandos took Shrum to a guerrilla camp for questioning after a woman guerrilla said he had interrogated her when she was a captive in Israel.

Earlier Shrum was visited by Red Cross representatives in a private house in Amman. One reported that he was well "and should be released in a few hours. It was a case of mistaken identity." Shrum is medical adviser with the U.S. Embassy in Athens.

Kamal Nasser, a guerrilla leader in Jordan, said Monday that the situation there "is on the way to a settlement" and that the guerrillas can now "step up our operations against the real enemy—Israel."

The fighting ended last Friday after King Hussein acceded to guerrilla demands that he fire two of his relatives from top army commands.

Nasser, a member of the executive council of the Palestine Liberation Organization, said in an interview: "It was the decision of the recent Cairo meeting of the Palestine National Council to escalate operations against Israel by combined guerrilla forces, and now we can get on with that task."

Westfall Board Accepts Teacher Resignations

The Westfall Board of Education Monday accepted the resignations of five teachers of the school district.

Mrs. Cora Willis, a cafeteria worker, also resigned. The board approved the following bids: Pennington Bakery, for bread; Bowman Dairy, for milk; Ned H. Dresbach, Sinclair distributor, for gas and fuel oil; Circleville Oil, tires and oil.

The pay scale for substitute teachers was increased to $20 per day.

Furnace repairs at Darby and Williamsport Schools were approved.

Friday board members will tour elementary buildings in the district to decide what repairs to follow.

Limits on U.S. spending for this purpose are a key part of the Cooper-Church proposal barring U.S. forces in Cambodia after July 1 and limiting use of American air power.

At the same time, Sen. Robert G. Byrd, D-W.Va., sought support for a modified version of his amendment that was defeated 52-47 last week in the biggest administration setback since a $300 million foreign military sales bill became the focal point of the Cambodian debate more than a month ago.

Byrd's amendment would have retained all restrictions proposed by Sens. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., except where the President thought it necessary to protect U.S. troops withdrawing from Vietnam.

The key to administration tactics appeared to be the Griffin amendment.

"It goes right to the heart of the Nixon doctrine," said Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., a leading administration backer.

Policemen Are 'Sick'

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP) —The entire morning shift of the Newport police department called in sick today, the second time in two weeks, after city officials refused a pay raise Monday night.

City Manager Don Roney said the city was operating $15,000 "in the red" now and that new economy measures were upcoming.

The city commission, while expressing sympathy for the 43 man police department, voted against any wage increase. The police, whose base salary is $5,635, were asking for $1,000 more plus a $150 clothing allowance.

The morning shift called in "sick" with "louse fever" June 9 after negotiations broke down. Police Chief Edward "Buzz" Gugel provided a skeleton crew of supervisors and Campbell County Police and sheriffs deputies were called into the city.

WHS Seniors Return From Washington

The 25 area seniors and four chaperones from the Westfall District returned Sunday from a 5-day trip to Washington D. C.

Many extra side trips were enjoyed besides those scheduled, including the movies "Mash" and "Airport," boat ride on the Potomac, trip to Georgetown, and attending the baseball game at the Kennedy Memorial Stadium between the Washington Senators and the Minnesota Twins.

Ashville Marshall Makes Five Arrests

Alva Boyer, Ashville Marshall, made five arrests over the weekend, four for excessive speed.

Gary L. Jackson, Route 1, Ashville was fined $29.20 for excessive speed in the village.

David M. Booth, Route 2, Ashville, was fined $29.20 for the same charge.

Keith L. Pahl, San Antonio, Texas, was arrested for excessive speed in the village and fined $29.20.

Donald J. Rega Jr., Tures Falls, Mass., was fined $29.20 on the same charge.

James Henry Shortridge, Route 1, Ashville, was fined $59.80 for operating a motor vehicle without a valid operator's license.

He referred to the policy Nixon spelled out last year of helping countries that demonstrate willingness to help themselves.

Dole said debate on the amendment could take several days. But, he added, the proposal probably won't be offered if there is no chance of winning.

Even if the administration decides to abandon any further effort to water down the Cooper-Church proposal, it appeared unlikely the Senate would finish work on the military sales bill until next week.

Dole said he believed Cooper-Church already had been gutted partly by the overwhelming adoption last week of an amendment declaring that nothing in Cooper-Church restricts the President's powers as commander in chief.

Nevertheless, Dole indicated he was reluctant to see the over-all bill pass.

Although the House is not expected to approve the Cooper-Church amendment, Dole and other Republicans do not want to leave any possibility the representatives could approve the restrictions and send the bill to the President before Nixon has a chance to fulfill his pledge to pull all U.S. troops out of Cambodia by June 30.

Hickel Wants Single Agency For Ecology, Conservation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel still hopes environmental problems and conservation of natural resources can be controlled by a single federal agency—despite reports President Nixon plans to separate them.

A presidential panel has recommended creating an independent "Environmental Protection Administration" and a new "Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration" in the Commerce Department. Some sources say Nixon has decided to go ahead with that plan.

Hickel indicated in an interview, however, the decision may still be open.

"They're not creating a new agency under Commerce that I..." Hickel began. Then, checking himself, he added, "Those are just proposals."

"We have discussed for a long time the pros and cons of having an enforcement agency," he continued, "and that's basically what we're talking about in this one agency," referring to the proposed Environmental Protection Administration.

Hickel has long urged creation of a unified "Department of Natural Resources and Environment" embracing government functions now scattered among several departments and agencies.

Assignment of atmospheric and oceanographic programs to another agency would deal a serious blow to that idea.

Asked whether he still hoped to win White House acceptance of his one-agency concept, Hickel said, "Yes, I think that what is happening now is part of a reorganization that can be beneficial."

Youths Fined For Burning

Judge William Ammer Monday imposed sentences on five youths involved in the burning of an old building owned by Mrs. Harold Hansen.

Charles Chester Renn, Bryan; Donald S. Greenwood, Williamsport, and Douglas Gregory Wade, New Jersey, were fined $50 and placed on one year probation.

Ronald Louis Hand Jr. and John Joseph Eagles were placed on probation for one year. All pleaded guilty to a charge of malicious destruction of property.

W. Richard Hansen, the Jackson Twp. farmer accused of contributing to the burning of the building, was sentenced last week. He received a fine of $500 plus costs and given a one year probationary term.

Firemen Answer Two Night Calls

Circleville's Fire Department answered two calls Monday evening.

At 6:30 p.m. the department received a call from the Coady Construction Co., at the corner of Franklin St. and Scioto St., that a tar kettle had ignited. No loss was reported.

At 11:30 p.m. the firemen answered a reported fire at S. Court and Ohio St., where an auto owned by John Shaw had backfired and caught fire. Damage to the interior of the auto and the motor was estimated at $300.

cial, but in the long range there will have to be a department of natural resources and environment."

"I do not think you can separate natural resources from the environment," he said. "They're like ham and eggs."

Should the reports prove true, Hickel said, "I would do whatever had to be done" although "it wouldn't be as challenging."

Reorganization would not drive him to resign from the cabinet, he said, unless — in terms of Interior's scope — "there weren't any great problems left to solve."

There have been consistent reports that Hickel might quit — or be fired—because of his publicly disclosed concern with Nixon administration policies, particularly relating to the nation's youth.

Hickel said he passed up the chance to run this year for governor of Alaska—the post he left in 1968 to become Interior secretary—because, "I thought there was a job to do here and it wasn't completed."

For the past five years, however, Selective Service—the agency whose 4,087 local draft boards actually have to make those decisions month by month —has been casting about for some way to measure the strength of an individual's personal beliefs.

Tarr, who became draft director last April, said one of his first goals would be to make draft policies, especially on conscientious objection, more uniform in their application by these thousands of boards.

He told an inter-religious meeting on conscientious objection he would not mind even seeing the concept broadened—some objectors seek exemption on grounds of moral beliefs to a particular war, rather than war in general.

But Tarr said he just could not accept the inequity of having to send someone into service, in place of a man who selfishly ducked his own obligation.

Tarr's staff recently drafted a letter to local boards to guide them in this difficult area, but Tarr wasn't satisfied and decided to meet with a policy council of state directors next week before trying once more to clear up the policy.

"Mr. Herbert acknowledged and thanked us for our substantial support," Donahue said. "He did not directly discuss a contribution."

"I took his answer to be an acknowledgement of the fact we were supporting his campaign."

Donahue said the incident occurred late in April. Groban, in his deposition, said Herbert walked in an thanked them for the contribution "around the week of April 20."

Griffith also said under oath that Herbert once walked into the office of Robert Gardner, ousted deputy treasurer, and thanked them for the support. "As far as I was concerned at the time, (it) was a representation of an earlier contribution that we had made," Griffith said.

Cloud said the state has never lost money on the transactions. He said the interest alone on the loans will bring in an estimated $47 million in 1970.

But, he said, the loans could be criticized for two reasons: —They at times exceed the $50 million limitation set by state law.

—There was never any justification for allowing a firm of the type of Crofters to serve as an agent in the investment.

"Transactions should have been made through a firm which was licensed to do business as an agent or broker," Cloud said.

"The purchases of commercial notes should have been accomplished with a licensed broker and met the legal requirement."

Nixon Backers Test Senate Feeling On Cambodia Curbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration forces are testing political winds in the Senate, looking for signs of support for a final assault on proposed Cambodian war curbs.

Assistant Republican Leader Robert P. Griffin of Michigan was reported seeking two or three votes to put across an amendment to free President Nixon to finance operations of other nations aiding the shaky Cambodian government.

U.S. Physician Freed By Arab Guerrillas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

American physician Dr. William Paul Shrum was released by Arab guerrillas today after being held for a week, the Jordanian Foreign Ministry announced.

Shrum was handed over to the ministry which delivered him to the U.S. Embassy. He is being flown out of Jordan on the first available plane to Beirut, Lebanon.

Shrum, 45, was one of 62 foreigners held as hostages last week in Amman by Palestinian guerrillas during the fighting between the guerrillas and Jordanian army troops.

The Marxist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine released the rest of the hostages last Friday from the two Amman hotels where they were being held. But the commandos took Shrum to a guerrilla camp for questioning after a woman guerrilla said he had interrogated her when she was a captive in Israel.

Earlier Shrum was visited by Red Cross representatives in a "private house in Amman. One reported that he was well "and should be released in a few hours. It was a case of mistaken identity," Shrum is medical adviser with the U.S. Embassy in Athens.

Kamal Nasser, a guerrilla leader in Jordan, said Monday that the situation there "is on the way to a settlement" and that the guerrillas can now "step up our operations against the real enemy—Israel."

The fighting ended last Friday after King Hussein acceded to guerrilla demands that he fire two of his relatives from top army commands.

Nasser, a member of the executive council of the Palestine Liberation Organization, said in an interview: "It was the decision of the recent Cairo meeting of the Palestine National Council to escalate operations against Israel by combined guerrilla forces, and now we can get on with that task."

Westfall Board Accepts Teacher Resignations

The Westfall Board of Education Monday accepted the resignations of five teachers of the school district.

The board approved the following bids: Pennington Bakery, for bread; Bowman Dairy, for milk; Ned H. Dresbach, Sinclair distributor, for gas and fuel oil; Circleville Oil, tires and oil.

The pay scale for substitute teachers was increased to $20 per day.

Furnace repairs at Darby and Williamsport Schools were approved.

Friday board members will tour elementary buildings in the district to decide what repairs to follow.

Limits on U.S. spending for this purpose are a key part of the Cooper-Church proposal barring U.S. forces in Cambodia after July 1 and limiting use of American air power.

At the same time, Sen. Robert G. Byrd, D-W.Va., sought support for a modified version of his amendment that was defeated 52-47 last week in the biggest administration setback since a $300 million foreign military sales bill became the focal point of the Cambodian debate more than a month ago.

Byrd's amendment would have retained all restrictions proposed by Sens. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., except where the President thought it necessary to protect U.S. troops withdrawing from Vietnam.

The key to administration tactics appeared to be the Griffin amendment.

"It goes right to the heart of the Nixon doctrine," said Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., a leading administration backer.

Policemen Are 'Sick'

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP) —The entire morning shift of the Newport police department called in sick today, the second time in two weeks, after city officials refused a pay raise Monday night.

City Manager Don Roney said the city was operating $15,000 "in the red" now and that new economy measures were upcoming.

The city commission, while expressing sympathy for the 43 man police department, voted against any wage increase. The police, whose base salary is $5,635, were asking for $1,000 more plus a $150 clothing allowance.

The morning shift called in "sick" with "louse fever" June 9 after negotiations broke down. Police Chief Edward "Buzz" Gugel provided a skeleton crew of supervisors and Campbell County Police and sheriffs deputies were called into the city.

Hickel Wants Single Agency For Ecology, Conservation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel still hopes environmental problems and conservation of natural resources can be controlled by a single federal agency—despite reports President Nixon plans to separate them.

A presidential panel has recommended creating an independent "Environmental Protection Administration" and a new "Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration" in the Commerce Department. Some sources say Nixon has decided to go ahead with that plan.

Hickel indicated in an interview, however, the decision may still be open.

"They're not creating a new agency under Commerce that I..." Hickel began. Then, checking himself, he added, "Those are just proposals."

"We have discussed for a long time the pros and cons of having an enforcement agency," he continued, "and that's basically what we're talking about in this one agency" referring to the proposed Environmental Protection Administration.

Hickel has long urged creation of a unified "Department of Natural Resources and Environment" embracing government functions now scattered among several departments and agencies.

Assignment of atmospheric and oceanographic programs to another agency would deal a serious blow to that idea.

Asked whether he still hoped to win White House acceptance of his one-agency concept, Hickel said, "Yes. I think that what is happening now is part of a reorganization that can be beneficial."

Youths Fined For Burning

Judge William Ammer Monday imposed sentences on five youths involved in the burning of an old building owned by Mrs. Harold Hansen.

Charles Chester Renn, Bryan; Donald S. Greenwood, Williamsport, and Douglas Gregory Wade, New Jersey, were fined $50 and placed on one year probation.

Ronald Louis Hand Jr. and John Joseph Eagles were placed on probation for one year. All pleaded guilty to a charge of malicious destruction of property.

W. Richard Hansen, the Jackson Twp. farmer accused of contributing to the burning of the building, was sentenced last week. He received a fine of $500 plus costs and given a one year probationary term.

Firemen Answer Two Night Calls

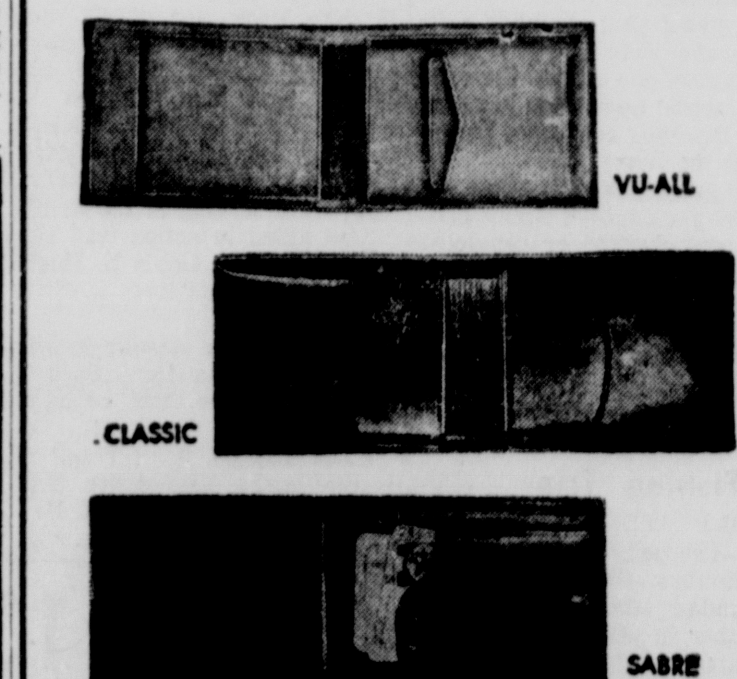

Circleville's Fire Department answered two calls Monday evening.

At 6:30 p.m. the department received a call from the Coady Construction Co., at the corner of Franklin St. and Scioto St., that a tar kettle had ignited. No loss was reported.

At 11:30 p.m. the firemen answered a reported fire at S. Court and Ohio St., where an auto owned by John Shaw had backfired and caught fire. Damage to the interior of the auto and the motor was estimated at $300.

Farm Gains Mixed

Farmers fared better last year than they have in many years, according to computations of the United States Department of Agriculture, but they still fall far short of the national income average.

In his first annual report, Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin ticked off these accomplishments:

Farmers' realized net income rose $1.2 billion to $16 billion last year. Average net farm income rose to a record high of $5,401 last year, a significant increase over the $4,841 recorded in 1968. Per capita personal farm income of $2,375 in 1969 also was a new record and compared with $2,163 in 1968. Total farm assets also climbed to a new high of $307 billion.

Offsetting this improvement was the fact average farm income in 1969 was still only about three-fourths that of nonfarmers. And the farm program for this year has been thrown into confusion by the abrupt halting of all action on a new farm bill by the House Agriculture Committee after a wrangle over extending farm support programs due to expire at the end of this year.

Farm incomes are improving, but at the expense of fewer farms and farmers and a reduced voice in the legislative process which helps support them.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — If you imagine for a moment that this economy of ours is like a blotter you'll have a fair idea of a little publicized, behind-the-scenes financial move that is having a powerful economic impact.

The blotter had been growing very dry, mainly because the government was trying to evaporate excess moisture, or money, that leads to inflation. When soggy, a blotter cannot hold its own weight.

The attempt to put some stiffness into the blotter began more than a year ago with a much heralded program to wring inflation from the economy. One way to do this is to keep money from the economy or water from the blotter.

After many months of this, corporations began talking about illiquidity, or the absence of sufficient money to carry out their plans.

Generally speaking, an economy is illiquid when there isn't enough money circulating to handle the affairs of business smoothly, or fluidly. It means the blotter is dry.

The problems of the Penn Central Railroad is an illustration. It has a lot of bills coming due, but it is uncertain that in today's market it can raise enough money to pay them on time and still have cash for other affairs.

Penn Central isn't the only company so affected, although it may be suffering the most. Many companies and municipalities have been forced to postpone projects because they felt they couldn't raise the cash.

When the problem affects large individual companies or cities it is serious. But when the federal government itself cannot raise money to conduct its business, then the problem is critical. And that problem arose a few weeks ago.

The blotter, it appears, was very dry. Not dry as dust, but becoming a bit crumbly or friable. It was dry enough, at any rate, to threaten government efforts to obtain some moisture, or money. Then the Fed acted.

The Fed, remember, is warden of the spigot. It controls the flow of money to the economy. When it wants to dry out an inflated economy it closes the spigot a bit. When liquidity is needed it turns the faucet the other way.

Obviously, when the federal government's ability to borrow money is threatened by illiquidity in the market place, the Fed cannot stand by idly. And so it provided the money. It released moisture that spread through the blotter.

The complication, however, is this: In order to defeat inflation, it is felt that people have to live with a dry blotter for a while. So what if they need moisture; let them do without. If you can't squeeze moisture from the blotter you must do without: if you don't have money you cannot make demands upon the economy.

In other words, it is felt, the demands for money by business and governmental units—even the federal government—must be limited in order to contain inflation. The need for moisture must be ignored until the blotter returns to its proper shape, until it shrinks some.

The Fed felt that this could not be done. It would have been more than embarrassing if the federal government, with its reputation, couldn't borrow from its own people. It would have been a disaster to confidence.

In releasing the funds, however, the Fed actually deserted its own anti-inflation program and possibly irrigated another round of rising prices. Too much money in the economy; too much moisture in the blotter.

If the country goes off on another binge, it will only mean a more painful drying out later. It has always been that way. It's what is referred to as the boom-bust cycle, or the wet-dry blotter.

The Fed knows this. But it knows also that while consumers, cities and business can be denied a drink, Uncle Sam cannot. The old man has an almost unquenchable thirst. It makes him do some odd things.

Letter To The Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE — We welcome letters to the editor. In order to be considered for publication, they must bear the correct name and address of the writer. Anonymous letters and those signed with the request that signatures be withheld will not be accepted for publication. Opinions expressed in this column are those of the writers and not necessarily those of The Herald.

Dear Editor:
I am writing this letter in clarification to the one received of you by Mr. Jacobs.

The first point I would like to bring forward is the fact that Mr. O'Neil's health has been poor because of the excessive amount of work he puts in with both band and choir. Before Solo and Ensemble Contests this year, he spent from fourth period to 11:11:30 p.m. at night helping individuals and groups prepare for the contest. The night after the contest he was in bed sick and out of school for three days due to complete physical exhaustion.

In response to Mr. Jacob's comment that a teacher was added to the music department is true. He does not mention, however, that this teacher was removed two years later from the high school level and put on the junior high, leaving the senior high band and choir to one person again.

Mr. Jacob's comment that Mr. O'Neil has only three scheduled activities a day is valid, but in his free time in the afternoon he spends his time helping individuals and groups progress and develop their talents.

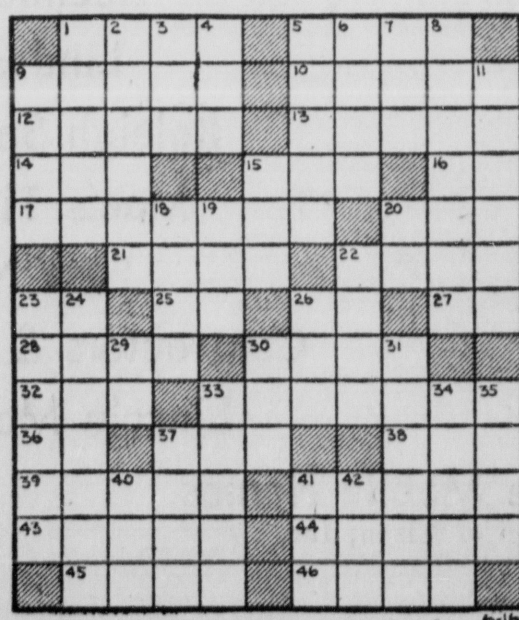

May I also add that in my two years under Mr. O'Neil I have never once seen Mr. Jacobs come into the bandroom at any time to see what was happening in the music department, and I spent almost every free moment I had in the bandroom.

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

In this age of hostility, anger, rebellion and turbulence, it is sometimes difficult to see hopeful evidence of man's kindness to man. Such a special joy was afforded me during a recent lecture tour by a man who is not a scientist, not a physician, not a sociologist.

Mr. Charles Kandell first came to my attention when I spoke at the Southern Nevada Memorial Hospital in Las Vegas. Here I learned that this dedicated individual, as a one man team, encourages students to pursue careers in medicine and science and supports them with scholarships.

His encouragement has induced many potential dropouts to continue their education.

The American need for well-prepared graduate university and scientific personnel is the far vision of one who himself had not had the benefit of protracted study.

With the wisdom of a social psychologist, he says: "We must teach the youth of America that there are great rewards and joys in study. Only in this way, can we possibly insure the stability of their own emotions."

My fascination with the social psychology of Mr. Kandell then led me to one of his co-workers, Mr. Abraham Margolies, who, in his own way, has helped to rehabilitate many ex-convicts.

Mr. Margolies, who heads a vast jewelry enterprise, employs ex-convicts and uses them in every aspect of his business. At first glance, one would believe that the jewelry business would be the very last one to which to invite workers with criminal records. Mr. Margolies says, "Never, but never, have I ever employed more reliable and dependable people." He further says, "The rehabilitation of the ex-convict is society's obligation to itself."

The rehabilitation of an ex-convict, moreover, is as important as the rehabilitation of a patient who has had a chronic physical illness. Here are two dedicated human beings who have contributed vastly to modern science and medicine. Two of Mr. Kandell's scholarship students have found great rewards and pride in their work and have won recognition in scientific medicine.

One of Mr. Margolies' "trustees" has organized a group of workers who devote themselves to the prevention of juvenile delinquency. With great pride and success they point to the fact that "a child spared of a criminal record is as important as a child saved by polio vaccine."

It is a source of great pleasure to find that such human beings are not rarities. Many pursue their social hobbies seeking no reward other than the inner joy of contributing to the physical and psychological expansion of the life of a fellow human being.

Eating rapidly deprives you of a special pleasure and certainly puts a burden on your digestion.

Animal, Vegetable, Mineral

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The kids used to play a game of identification called "animal, vegetable or mineral." All three substances, or resources, are necessary to human life. However, in the development of the United States the "mineral" category — and what comes out of it in our factories — has always had first place.

Our ecologists are now changing the rating. Not swiftly not overwhelmingly. But they are getting more and more of a public. For instance, out in Idaho, a proposed open pit molybdenum mining development in the White Clouds mountain region north of Sun Valley would threaten, through its distribution of tailing wastes, some of the finest salmon spawning grounds in the Columbia River system. The ecologists are claiming that we already have plenty of molybdenum, which is used to harden steel. But the supply of salmon is threatened from as we build more and more dams in the rivers. So what will you take in the resource-identification game: animal (salmon) or mineral (molybdenum)? The salmon have a chance of winning.

The identification game is taking a new turn in South Carolina, where the Badische Anilin and Soda-Fabrik company (BASF) of West Germany proposes to build a $200-million dye and plastic plant on the Colleton River near Beaufort. Since BASF would use naphtha, an oil derivative, as a base for its production, it qualifies, roughly speaking, as a "mineral" user. (For the purists, let me say that; I am quite aware that oil, in prehistoric ages, was once vegetable matter.)

The conservationists in South Carolina object that pollution from the BASF plant would kill the shrimp and oyster industries in the estuaries of the Port Royal Sound area. So which will you take in the resource-identification game in South Carolina: mineral (oil) and its plastic derivatives) or animal (shrimp and oysters)?

The complication, in South Carolina, is that the blacks of Beaufort County are miserably poor and could use the jobs that a chemical industry would provide.

Save for a few blacks who own a shrimp-catching cooperative, the poor citizens around Beaufort are overwhelmingly in favor of the BASF plant. So is South Carolina's Governor Robert McNair. And, if it comes down to jobs, the oyster and shrimp fishermen — and the proprietors of the beautiful recreational and retirement developments on Hilton Head Island — haven't a chance. As one influential black has said, "If I got to put the oyster beds up against people, the oyster beds have got to go."

However, in a clever move, the Hilton Head real estate people, the shrimp and oyster fishermen, and the embattled conservationists of the Audubon Society, the Sierra Club and the Friends of the Earth, are now firing back with their own job-making proposition. They claim that the chemical industry must inevitably pollute the waters despite all the promises that liquid wastes will be purified and "recycled." But recognizing that jobs of some kind are needed in Beaufort County, they suggest that an industrial park be set up on the BASF-owned site on the Colleton River. They are willing to buy the site for the price that BASF paid for it, with a provision that they will resell it to the state in three years if they haven't created the same number of jobs that BASF has figured on creating in a dye and plastics complex.

The "clean" industries which the Hilton Head proprietors and the conservationists have in mind include outboard motor manufacturing, the making of baseball, football, tennis and golf equipment, fishing tackle manufacture, and the construction of mobile living units, bicycles and terrain vehicles.

The claim of the conservationists is that such industries would not have to pump waste into the estuaries, and that they would complement the growing recreational businesses of the Port Royal Sound area. They offer the big names of golfer Jack Nicklaus and football quarterback Fran Tarkenton as sponsors of the proposed Industrial Park.

Whether this will settle the argument in South Carolina remains to be seen. But the ecologists are now getting wily: they have begun to recognize that industrial jobs of some type are necessary to the "food chain" of poor people. With common sense on their side, they may begin to win important victories.

Farm Gains Mixed

Farmers fared better last year than they have in many years, according to computations of the United States Department of Agriculture, but they still fall far short of the national income average.

In his first annual report, Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin ticked off these accomplishments:

Farmers' realized net income rose $1.2 billion to $16 billion last year. Average net farm income rose to a record high of $5,401 last year, a significant increase over the $4,841 recorded in 1968. Per capita personal farm income of $2,375 in 1969 also was a new record and compared with $2,163

in 1968. Total farm assets also climbed to a new high of $307 billion.

Offsetting this improvement was the fact average farm income in 1969 was still only about three-fourths that of nonfarmers. And the farm program for this year has been thrown into confusion by the abrupt halting of all action on a new farm bill by the House Agriculture Committee after a wrangle over extending farm support programs due to expire at the end of this year.

Farm incomes are improving, but at the expense of fewer farms and farmers and a reduced voice in the legislative process which helps support them.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — If you imagine for a moment that this economy of ours is like a blotter you'll have a fair idea of a little publicized, behind-the-scenes financial move that is having a powerful economic impact.

The blotter had been growing very dry, mainly because the government was trying to evaporate excess moisture, or money, that leads to inflation. When soggy, a blotter cannot hold its own weight.

The attempt to put some stiffness into the blotter began more than a year ago with a much heralded program to wring inflation from the economy. One way to do this is to keep money from the economy or water from the blotter.

After many months of this, corporations began talking about illiquidity, or the absence of sufficient money to carry out their plans.

Generally speaking, an economy is illiquid when there isn't enough money circulating to handle the affairs of business smoothly, or fluidly. It means the blotter is dry.

The problems of the Penn Central Railroad is an illustration. It has a lot of bills coming due, but it is uncertain that in today's market it can raise enough money to pay them on time and still have cash for other affairs.

Penn Central isn't the only company so affected, although it may be suffering the most. Many companies and municipalities have been forced to postpone projects because they felt they couldn't raise the cash.

When the problem affects large individual companies or cities it is serious. But when the federal government itself cannot raise money to conduct its business, then the problem is critical. And that problem arose a few weeks ago.

The blotter, it appears, was very dry. Not dry as dust, but becoming a bit crumbly or friable. It was dry enough, at any rate, to threaten government efforts to obtain some moisture, or money. Then the Fed acted.

The Fed, remember, is warden of the spigot. It controls the flow of money to the economy. When it wants to dry out an inflated economy it closes the spigot a bit. When liquidity is needed it turns the faucet the other way.

Obviously, when the federal government's ability to borrow money is threatened by illiquidity in the market place, the Fed cannot stand by idly. And so it provided the money. It released moisture that spread through the blotter.

The complication, however, is this: In order to defeat inflation, it is felt that people have to live with a dry blotter for a while. So what if they need moisture; let them do without. If you can't squeeze moisture from the blotter you must do without; if you don't have money you cannot make demands upon the economy.

In other words, it is felt, the demands for money by business and governmental units—even the federal government—must be limited in order to contain inflation. The need for moisture must be ignored until the blotter returns to its proper shape, until it shrinks some.

The Fed felt that this could not be done. It would have been more than embarrassing if the federal government, with its reputation, couldn't borrow from its own people. It would have been a disaster to confidence.

In releasing the funds, however, the Fed actually deserted its own anti-inflation program and possibly irrigated another round of rising prices. Too much money in the economy; too much moisture in the blotter.

If the country goes off on another binge, it will only mean a more painful drying out later. It has always been that way. It's what is referred to as the boom-bust cycle, or the wet-dry blotter.

The Fed knows this. But it knows also that while consumers, cities and business can be denied a drink, Uncle Sam cannot. The old man has an almost unquenchable thirst. It makes him do some odd things.

Letter To The Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE — We welcome letters to the editor. In order to be considered for publication, they must bear the correct name and address of the writer. Anonymous letters and those signed with the request that signatures be withheld will not be accepted for publication. Opinions expressed in this column are those of the writers and not necessarily those of The Herald.

Dear Editor:
I am writing this letter in clarification to the one received of you by Mr. Jacobs.

The first point I would like to bring forward is the fact that Mr. O'Neil's health has been poor because of the excessive amount of work he puts in with both band and choir. Before Solo and Ensemble Contests this year, he spent from fourth period to 11-11:30 p.m. at night helping individuals and groups prepare for the contest. The night after the contest he was in bed sick and out of school for three days due to complete physical exhaustion. In response to Mr. Jacob's comment that a teacher was added to the music department is true. He does not mention, however, that this teacher was removed two years later from the high school level and put on the junior high, leaving the senior high band and choir to one person again.

Mr. Jacob's comment that Mr. O'Neil has only three scheduled activities a day is valid, but in his free time in the afternoon he spends his time helping individuals and groups progress and develop their talents.

May I also add that in my two years under Mr. O'Neil I have never once seen Mr. Jacobs come into the bandroom at any time to see what was happening in the music department, and I spent almost every free moment I had in the bandroom.

Mr. Jacobs makes mention that Mr. O'Neil requested the job of handling choir. Those who know Mr. O'Neil know that this could not be so. Mr. O'Neil is the first to admit that he has very limited training in teaching a choir and that he could not justify his conscience to request an organization he could not properly train.

May I also add that Mr. O'Neil, while other teachers are enjoying a vacation during Pumpkin Show, Memorial Day, Thanksgiving and most weekends, is required to be with the band for parades, football games and other school activities.

How would you, the people of this town, react if some Friday or Saturday night the band didn't play at a basketball or football game because the director didn't put in the extra hours needed to make up a show?

In closing, I would like to say that in my two years here at Circleville, the knowledge of teamwork, self-responsibility, and respect for others that I have gained will be remembered always, and it is my fondest wish to see that the Circleville Board of Education have someone who really knows, not pretends to know, the problems involved in teaching music, evaluate our music program and make the necessary changes in our program so that Circleville can have one of the best music departments in the state.

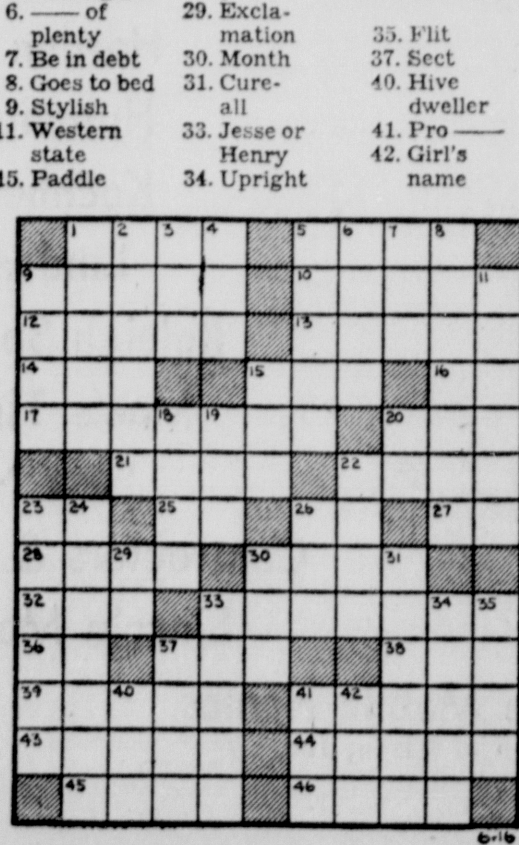

To the Circleville Board of Education I express my sympathy that you could not hold on to the finest band director Circleville High School has had in a long time by giving him a fair shake and hiring a much needed assistant. And to the O'Neils I wish the best of luck and may God bless you always.

Growing Problem With Automobile Defects Being Probed

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Carmine Monaco was taking his family for a Memorial Day drive in his two-week-old 1965 Oldsmobile when he noticed the car in front of him had stopped.

Monaco slammed on his brakes. His car veered across the median strip of the Meadowbrook Parkway and plowed into another car containing three young men returning from a beach outing.

Monaco later testified the brakes on one wheel grabbed, forcing the car to veer off. A mechanic testified grease had leaked onto the brake lining. A jury found General Motors and one of its dealers guilty of careless manufacture and maintenance of the car and ordered them to pay $175,000 to the two youths injured in the crash.

The judgment, which is on appeal, is not the only time automobile manufacturers have been accused of shoddy manufacturing practices.

"The present situation is that quality control of automobiles is unsatisfactory, the warranty coverage putatively provided by the manufacturers is inadequate, and the industry response to the problem insufficient to protect the public," said the Federal Trade Commission in February.

New York attorney Joseph Kelnor says the fact that he was able to convince a jury that auto manufacturing practices have serious shortcomings underscores what he calls a "fast-gun society" mentality.

"It showed for the first time—that I know of—that between 9 and 10 million cars in America are put out with an emphasis on speed, with little regard for people's safety, and that they do not road test at all," said Kelnor.

General Motors and the major American manufacturers road test only a small fraction of the more than 8 million or so passenger cars they sell every year. But they now have devices to test the grabbing power of brakes as cars come off the assembly line.

GM alone says it spent $412 million in salaries for its 20,000 full time quality control inspection people in 1968.

Nevertheless, safety-related trouble with at least one of the 14,000 parts in a modern automobile has forced the recall of 14 million vehicles in 545 campaigns in the more than two years since the government's Highway Safety Bureau began monitoring the process.

In 1969, American passenger car production totaled 8.8 million. During the same year, manufacturers initiated safety-related recalls involving nearly 7 million cars, some of them models as old as 1965.

American Motors recalled 27,242 AM and Javelins after discovering the possibility that chafing of the clutch system against the brake line could cause the brakes to fail.

Chrysler recalled 4,981 Chryslers, Plymouths and Dodges after finding there was a possibility the cars' wheels might fall off because a part may have been improperly heat-treated.

Ford recalled 354,000 Cougars which the firm decided had hoods which might fly open during driving.

General Motors accounted for the vast bulk of the 1969 recalls. GM found 2.6 million Chevrolets—built over five years—which might permit exhaust fumes to enter the body. It found 3 million cars and trucks had been equipped with carburetors which could cause the throttle to jam in an open position.

The industry opposed the proposal.

Twenty-nine federal safety standards already apply to automobiles. And industry officials contend their efforts to keep "bugs" out of cars are already extensive.

The complexities of assembling an automobile are astronomical. Chevrolet technicians sat down one day and computed the number of possible combinations in which a car's parts could be assembled. The figure came out with 125 zeros.

The planning process for new cars begins five years in advance. Suppliers are sought for some of the equipment the auto makers can't or don't want to provide themselves, but the manufacturer must still ride herd over the quality of its suppliers.

Components like brakes, transmissions, engines, steering columns and dash boards are sub-assembled separately from the chassis, sometimes at great distances from final assembly lines.

Once the car chassis starts down the final assembly line, workers swarming over the line put the entire car together in about two hours. Each worker has a little over a minute to perform his specialized task.

The possibilities of error are obvious. At GM's Cadillac assembly line, officials estimate 1 of 10 employees is an inspector. Road testing, representative of the most intensive in the industry, amounts to 100 cars a week—about 1 per cent of total production.

And the complexities of assembly are not the industry's only problem. Frank R. L. Daley Jr., head of service research and development at GM's Warren, Mich., technical center, estimates 60 per cent of the shortcomings in cars reaching dealers stem from transportation damage.

One year, for example, GM found large numbers of damaged wheel bearings. It turned out that the bearings, carefully designed by engineers to roll smoothly, had been damaged by the jostling of the trains the cars traveled on to the dealer.

Once the cars reach the dealer, mechanics are supposed to measure the vehicle's performance against a pre-delivery check sheet.

John C. Bates, director of the technical center marketing staff, says an annual survey shows 75 per cent of the dealers perform pre-delivery inspection properly.

Regarding the adequacy of

Buckeye Girls' State Election Slated Today

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—For the 1,258 delegates to Buckeye Girls' State, today was election day.

Each of Girls' State's two parties fielded a slate of three candidates for governor.

Running on the Federalist ticket were Susann Castorino of Columbus, Barbara Vinings of Chillicothe, and Diana Kuhn of Leavittsburg.

On the Nationalist ticket were Yvonne Rawls of Cleveland, Pat Storde of Junction City and Karen Green of Springfield. Buckeye Girls' State, a week-long event, is sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary to teach high school seniors about the operation of American government.

dealers' service facilities, GM surveys show two-thirds measure up. About 80 per cent of the dealers come within 75 per cent or more of compliance, says Bates.

What troubles Bates and other officials is that many of the failures are in critical urban areas, where dealers have large volumes and the cost of expansion is high.

At its technical center, General Motors is experimenting with space-age repair and quality control systems like a computer diagnostic system.

Meanwhile, the Federal Trade Commission notes that while the number of cars on the road in the United States was increasing by 31.6 per cent during the last decade, the number of dealerships for American manufacturers dropped by 15.6 per cent.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Readers React To Bare Chested Diner

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for printing those letters from women whose biggest problem in life was a husband who came to the table bare-chested. One sweet young thing dumped a bowl of molasses on her husband's bare chest to "teach him a lesson." She's lucky he didn't dump his fist on her offended little eye.

After three children I still find my husband's bare chest gorgeous—anywhere! I thought a woman married a man—not a stuffed shirt. What warped values dictate that prudish protocol comes before your man's comfort in his own home? The home he provided for YOUR comfort?

DALY'S WIFE
DEAR ABBY: I would like to get a look at the lady who was uptight because her husband came to the table without a shirt on. I don't say a woman has to have a fresh paint job and fancy hairdo when she sits down for dinner, but some women come to the table with their hair hanging in strings and not a drop of makeup on. I'd sooner look at a hairy chest.

HAIRY AND BARREL CHESTED
DEAR HAIRY: Hers?

DEAR ABBY: The wife and I had a good laugh over the letters about whether or not a man has the right to come to his own dinner table bare-chested.

Phone Solicitors Under PUCO Scrutiny

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Telephone solicitors were the object of hearings scheduled for today by the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio.

The commission, which reports it became interested in the telephone soliciting, while examining records of a Northern Ohio Telephone Co., is trying to determine whether solicitors tie up equipment to the detriment of the public.

Any driver in Denver, Col., who lets three parking tickets go unpaid risks finding a massive, three-part lock clamped on one of his car's front wheels. Extending from the hubcap to the tire like a 12-pound nutcracker, the lock prevents the car from being driven until its owner settles with the police department.

Our kids are all grown and gone now, and the wife is at that age where she gets a hot flash now and then, so more than once I'll be sitting at the dinner table while SHE takes her blouse and bra off. I never complain, nor do I find HER bare chest repulsive.

NO SWEAT IN HOUSTON

DEAR ABBY: Having finished the episode concerning MR. BARE CHEST at the dinner table, and his offended wife, I was suspicious of the rather abrupt ending. I not only expected that "BARE CHEST" never came to the table without a shirt on again, but that he never returned at all. And who could blame him? Poor devil. There happen to be quite a number of women around who would appreciate a man at their table—with or without shirt.

As for the trauma-ridden wives who find a bare chest "repulsive," they belong to the cult of poor dears who, after 20 years of marriage, are still dressing and undressing in the closet.

My attitude toward the issue is identical to your own comment frequently following your column, Abby. That is, "You'll feel better if you get it off your chest."

"FEELS BETTER"
DEAR ABBY: I am convinced that no one—but NO ONE can possibly live without problems. For if you don't have a problem, you will MAKE one.

I refer to the big deal some women make out of a bare chest at the dinner table.

If a man is clean and feels more comfortable without a shirt, there is no reason why he should be asked to wear one in the privacy of his own home.

Some women don't know how lucky they are to have a husband to share a meal with them. Mine is gone.

LONESOME

DEAR ABBY: Congratulations to the woman who stopped her husband from coming to the table TOPLESS by threatening to serve him bottomless. It didn't work for me, but it was worth a try. When I appeared BOTTOMLESS, he went to the bedroom, put on a shirt and came back BOTTOMLESS!

German Measles Vaccine Reported Showing Results

NEW YORK (AP) — German measles vaccine appears to be reducing the incidence of the disease in states where the vaccine is widely used, the National Foundation-March of Dimes said today.

Dr. Virginia Apgar, the foundation's vice president for medical affairs, said 9 out of 10 states with "high vaccine coverage" have reported reduced incidence. Eight of ten states with poor coverage, she said, reported increases.

"While the data are not yet conclusive," Dr. Apgar said, "they do offer encouragement that widespread use of the vaccine among children may ultimately eliminate the disease as a threat to unborn babies."

The federal government began a $50-million campaign last summer with the aim of vaccinating 40 million to 60 million children between the ages of 1 and 12.

The vaccination program is directed at children to prevent the transmission of the German measles virus to women. If a woman contracts the disease during early pregnancy it can cause birth defects.

Women are not being directly vaccinated because doctors fear infecting a woman who may be pregnant and not know it.

Thousands of birth defects resulted from the last epidemic of German measles—also called rubella or three-day measles—in 1963-65.

Because German measles run in cycles, there could be another epidemic in 1971-73. The hope behind the vaccination campaign is to minimize its effects.

The campaign began last summer after the government first licensed a German measles vaccine.

The National Foundation found a 37 per cent decline in rubella in the 10 states with the highest percentage of vaccination in children aged 1 to 12. The states with the lowest percentages reported a 54 per cent increase.

The survey was based on the number of cases for the year ending May 24, 1969 compared to the year ending May 23, 1970.

Ruling On Objectors Acknowledges Ethics

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In vastly expanding the grounds for draft exemption the Supreme Court has acknowledged that a man may have deep moral and ethical objections to war while not being religious in the formal and traditional sense.

The 5-3 ruling Monday seems to reflect, in this regard, the curious growth of ethical fervor among much of today's youth alongside a corresponding disinterest in the formal religion of their elders.

Elliott Ashton Welsh II, the Beverly Hills, Calif., commodity broker who had said he could not injure or kill another human being was reared in a religious home and attended a Christian Science Sunday School.

But he did not rest his plea for conscientious objector status on traditional religion itself. On one occasion he struck the word "religion" from his application. On another he said his antiwar beliefs were "certainly religious in the ethical sense of that word."

Obviously uncertain about the extent of his own formal religion, Welsh today says: "I don't belong to any church, but I'm not an atheist." He also says: "Maybe you'd call me an agnostic because I leave open the question of religion; but I don't like labels."

It was enough for four justices that Welsh was sincere and steadfast in his beliefs; that they were deeply held and not a matter of expediency—that they were not adopted simply to avoid Army duty.

The four, Hugo L. Black, William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall, generally liberal in their interpretations, apparently decided on a pragmatic approach.

They evidently wished to give legal recognition to the fact that formally religious people do not have a monopoly on conscientious opposition to killing other human beings, that individuals often on their own develop objections that are as deep as those held by firm believers in the traditional God or Supreme Being.

There is some question, though, that Congress had this in mind when it specified C.O. status be granted men who "by reason of religious training and belief . . . (are) conscientiously opposed to participation in war in any form."

The three dissenters, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Potter Stewart and Byron R. White, were certain Congress did not intend to exempt men who disclaim religious objections to war and whose views represent a purely personal code arising from philosophy, history and sociology rather than from religious training and belief.

"Our obligation in statutory construction cases is to enforce the will of Congress, not our own," White wrote.

The eighth justice, John M. Harlan, said the majority had performed a lobotomy, erasing the distinction Congress intended to make between religiously acquired beliefs and those derived mostly from politics, sociology or philosophy.

But Harlan joined the reversal of Welsh's conviction because he said the Constitution prohibits Congress from aiding religious groups by granting religious exemptions from military service.

Whether draft boards will be able to follow both Congress and the court is problematical at this point. Deciding who to exempt and who to draft has always been a problem.

As Harlan noted, during World War I, when the exemption was granted to members or affiliates with "well-recognized religious sects," the Selective Service System found it impracticable to compile a list of "recognized" sects and left the matter to the discretion of local boards. As a result, some boards treated religious and nonreligious objectors in the same manner.

Finally, Harlan said, conscientious objector status was opened by presidential regulation to all conscientious objectors without regard to any religious qualifications.

In subsequent years Congress and the courts altered the definition of a conscientious objector several times without settling the problem.

The Welsh decision, while evidently reflecting the mood of the times, may not be the final answer yet—though Harlan, for one, observed the new test "would appear easier than the arcane inquiry required to determine whether beliefs are religious or secular in nature."

Cleveland Coin Collector Is Slain During Robbery

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Sheriff's officers believe three or four professional thieves were involved in Monday's robbery-slaying of Frederick C. Roth, 76, who had a coin collection he valued at more than $1 million.

Dr. Lester Adelson, Cuyahoga County deputy coroner, said Roth had been struck on the left ear with a metal instrument and apparently was knocked unconscious and died of suffocation face down in a pillow.

Roth's body was found bound hand and foot with electrical wire in the first-floor recreation room of the dead man's suburban North Royalton home. He was clad in pajamas and wearing slippers.

The body was found by a friend and caretaker, Edward Paukert, 72.

Paukert told Cuyahoga County sheriff's deputies that missing from the home were $260 in cash, a .38-caliber pistol and a pillow case, which may have been used to carry off other items.

Roth's coin collection has been in a vault at Central National Bank since burglars made off with $12,000 in rare coins in 1964.

Maj. Louis C. Kulis, chief sheriff's detective, said at least three or four men were involved. He said the men apparently were professionals, who believed Roth still kept large amounts of coins.

The men apparently gained entrance to Roth's home by posing as telephone repairmen after arriving at the home in an Ohio Bell Telephone Co.

truck stolen during the night Sunday. Kulis said someone climbed a nearby pole and cut wires leading into the house and to a recently installed alarm system.

The truck was left in Roth's driveway and the men took Roth's late-model limousine. The car was abandoned about a mile away. Officials said there were blood stains in the back seat.

Outbreak Brings Jail Sentences At Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP) — A Columbus, Ohio, man and a Detroit, Mich., youth have been sentenced to 90 days in the Cincinnati Workhouse on charges stemming from disturbances at a rock music festival.

James Travis, 26, of Columbus and Lito Magdalen, 18, of Detroit were fined $100 and costs after being convicted Monday in Hamilton County Municipal Court on charges of hindering a policeman.

They received the stiffest sentences of 12 persons found guilty by either Judge Paul Gilday or Thomas Heekin. The jurors also dismissed three cases; and granted continuances or set trials and preliminary hearings for 43 other persons arrested.

A total of 79 persons were taken into custody during the festival at Crosley Field which ended early Sunday with a bottle and rock throwing melee.

OHIO WEATHER SUMMARY

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Official Weather Bureau summary for Ohio:

Showers and thundershowers were numerous across central and northeast Ohio Monday night but only a few showers lingered at early today over the eastern counties.

Early this morning most places reported cloudy skies and temperatures within a couple of degrees of the 70 mark. Coolest in the state was Youngstown with 65.

Stark County Roads Closed By Flooding

MASSILLON, Ohio (AP) — Surface water and swollen creeks resulting from heavy rainfall had closed highways in several places in Stark County Monday night.

In Massillon, police reported several streets were flooded and that a wall at the Union Drawn Steel plant collapsed after being undermined by water. Damage to the plant was reported to be heavy, but no official estimate was available.

Police said the Erie Street ramp to U.S. 21 here was washed out.

The Ohio Highway Patrol said high water had forced the closing of U.S. 21 and Ohio 93 north of Massillon and Ohio 24 south of Massillon.

It said a washout had closed Ohio 236 north of here and that Ohio 800 south of Canton was closed because of a landslide.

The patrol said traffic was being routed around U.S. 30 at one point between Massillon and Canton because of water over the highway.

NEW YORK (AP) — German measles vaccine appears to be reducing the incidence of the disease in states where the vaccine is widely used, the National Foundation-March of Dimes said today.

Dr. Virginia Apgar, the foundation's vice president for medical affairs, said 9 out of 10 states with "high vaccine coverage" have reported reduced incidence. Eight of ten states with poor coverage, she said, reported increases.

Ruling On Objectors Acknowledges Ethics

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In vastly expanding the grounds for draft exemption the Supreme Court has acknowledged that a man may have deep moral and ethical objections to war while not being religious in the formal and traditional sense.

The 5-3 ruling Monday seems to reflect, in this regard, the curious growth of ethical fervor among much of today's youth alongside a corresponding disinterest in the formal religion of their elders.

Elliott Ashton Welsh II, the Beverly Hills, Calif., commodity broker who had said he could not injure or kill another human being was reared in a religious home and attended a Christian Science Sunday School.

But he did not rest his plea for conscientious objector status on traditional religion itself. On one occasion he struck the word "religion" from his application. On another he said his antiwar beliefs were "certainly religious in the ethical sense of that word."

Obviously uncertain about the extent of his own formal religion, Welsh today says: "I don't belong to any church, but I'm not an atheist." He also says: "Maybe you'd call me an agnostic because I leave open the question of religion; but I don't like labels."

It was enough for four justices that Welsh was sincere and steadfast in his beliefs; that they were deeply held and not a matter of expediency—that they were not adopted simply to avoid Army duty.

The four, Hugo L. Black, William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall, generally liberal in their interpretations, apparently decided on a pragmatic approach.

They evidently wished to give legal recognition to the fact that formally religious people do not have a monopoly on conscientious opposition to killing other human beings, that individuals often on their own develop objections that are as deep as those held by firm believers in the traditional God or Supreme Being.

There is some question, though, that Congress had this in mind when it specified C.O. status be granted men who "by reason of religious training and belief . . . (are) conscientiously opposed to participation in war in any form."

The three dissenters, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Potter Stewart and Byron R. White, were certain Congress did not intend to exempt men who disclaim religious objections to war and whose views represent a purely personal code arising from philosophy, history and sociology rather than from religious training and belief.

"Our obligation in statutory construction cases is to enforce the will of Congress, not our own," White wrote.

The eighth justice, John M. Harlan, said the majority had performed a lobotomy, erasing the distinction Congress intended to make between religiously acquired beliefs and those derived mostly from politics, sociology or philosophy.

But Harlan joined the reversal of Welsh's conviction because he said the Constitution prohibits Congress from aiding religious groups by granting religious exemptions from military service.

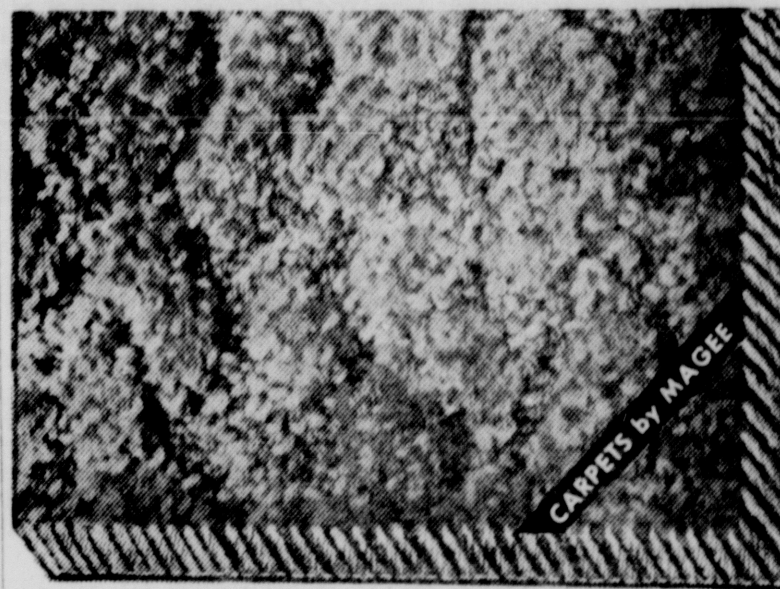

Whether draft boards will be able to follow both Congress and the court is problematical at this point. Deciding who to exempt and who to draft has always been a problem.

As Harlan noted, during World War I, when the exemption was granted to members of religious qualifications. In subsequent years Congress and the courts altered the definition of a conscientious objector several times without settling the problem.

The Welsh decision, while evidently reflecting the mood of the times, may not be the final answer yet—though Harlan, for one, observed the new test "would appear easier than the arcane inquiry required to determine whether beliefs are religious or secular in nature."

They received a club charter in 1958 and at the present time are in the process of building a new clubhouse on Williams Drive.

A member of the Central Ohio Center Concourse, they compete with Columbus, Lancaster, Zanesville, Massillon, Marion and Mansfield for racing honors.

The average loft usually contains from 50 to 75 birds and cost depends on the caliber of birds in the loft.

There are two series of races each year, the Old Bird Series, 100 to 600 miles, and the Young Bird Series, 100 to 300 miles. Old Bird Series consist of birds of any age while the Young Bird Series is made up of birds hatched in the current year.

Top 4 Teams Clash Today In College World Series

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The form chart was never better: for the double elimination College World Series, which enters the nitty-gritty fourth round Tuesday with the nation's top four teams remaining in the field.

Only No. 2 Texas, 39-6, is unbeaten after defeating No. 3 Florida State 5-1 Monday night. The Longhorns, with an eight-game winning streak, take on No. 1 Southern California, 40-13, in today's second game of a two-nighter. The opener pits Florida State, 47-8, against No. 4 Ohio U. 33-5.

Should Texas down USC, the Trojans would be out and the Longhorns only one victory away from the championship. The tourney may end Wednesday but could stretch to Thursday.

Only four times previously has a team gone unbeaten to sweep to the title.

Ohio's Bobcats, who upset USC 4-1 in Friday's first round and then were beaten 7-2 by Texas, are the only newcomers to the world series.

The Trojans are in their 12th appearance and have won five times, the last in 1968.

It's Texas' 14th trip. The Longhorns won in 1949 and 1950, the only team ever to take consecutive championships.

Florida State is back for the fifth time, but its best showing was fourth place in 1962.

Although nicked for 10 hits, Burt Hooten a sophomore right-hander, stifled Florida State 5-1 Monday night with 12 strikeouts. He didn't issue a walk in boosting his record to 12-1 and also singled home a run.

Jim Nelson, Pirates Stop Dodgers, 5-2

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jim Nelson got the San Francisco Giants in his major league debut and the Los Angeles Dodgers in his first start despite an aching shoulder that's threatening to make him a pain in the neck to National League hitters.

The 22-year-old right-hander, who made the major league scene with the Pittsburgh Pirates only last week, checked the Dodgers on five hits and one earned run in seven innings-plus Monday night and came away a 5-2 victor.

Nelson, who had pitched six scoreless innings in two previous relief stints, was tapped because the Pirates' four regular starters all worked over the weekend.

St. Louis held off San Diego 5-4 in the only other National League game while Houston's scheduled contest at Philadelphia was rained out.

In the American League, the Baltimore Orioles had their lead in the East Division trimmed to Harmon Killebrew brought the Twins from behind with a three-run homer in the seventh inning his 16th, and they opened a 4 1/2-game lead over the Angels in the AL West. Frank Howard homered for the Senators, his 19th.

Jack Heidemann, who doubled and scored in the first inning, singled home the winning run in the 12th following a pair of two-out walks as the Indians shaded the Angels. Heidemann had a double and three singles, giving him 10 hits in 16 at-bats since being inserted in the leadoff spot Saturday.

Eddie Leon's homer gave the Indians a 2-0 lead but the Angels tied it with two runs in the ninth off Sam McDowell before suffering their fifth defeat in six games.

A grand slam homer by Frank Fernandez highlighted a six-run third inning that carried Oakland past Detroit. Fernandez connected off Mickey Lolich, who has a sore back and was pitching in relief for the first time in more than a year.

Rick Monday also homered

for the A's while Dick McAuliffe's grand slam was one of three Tiger homers. Willie Horton and Al Kaline hit the others.

The Royals rallied three times to beat the Red Sox. Two-run homers by Pat Kelly in the fourth and Ed Kirkpatrick in the fifth wiped out early Boston leads and KC finally won it with three in the ninth.

The runs came across on singles by Lou Piniella and Paul Schaal. Jackie Hernandez' safe bunt, an error, Kelly's sacrifice fly and a game-winning single by Amos Otis.

Joe Torre's eighth-inning homer proved to be the winning run for the Cardinals against the Padres but St. Louis needed sharp defensive plays by shortstop and catcher Jim Kennedy.

Kennedy threw out Dave Campbell trying to go from second to third on a seventh-inning grounder and Nate Colbert followed with a wasted double.

Simmons picked pinch runner Jose Arcia off second in the eighth after two leadoff singles and the Padres settled for one run when Ramon Webster singled and Ron Slocum doubled.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds will be seeking their fourth straight victory over the New York Mets tonight when the clubs open a two-game series.

The Reds, who have been holding around a 10-game edge in the Western Division of the National League, have beaten the Mets in all three games at Crosley Field this year but have not played them in New York.

On Wednesday night, Wayne Simpson will oppose Gary Gentry, 6-4. Simpson, 9-1, hurled a complete game as the Reds won 5-1 over New York after the 10-2 game.

The local club is affiliated through the American Racing Pigeon Union and has 14 lofts in the chapter.

Members are Hager Blevins, president; Paul Haddock, vice president; Ron Arledge, secretary and treasurer; Virgil Russell, race secretary; John Hoffman, Homer Kuntz, Charles Iles, Eugene Iles, Jim Bensonhaver, Stan Crosby, Raymond Leach, John Grabans, Rich Ramey, Don Davis, Bill Turner and Fred Wolf.

They received a club charter in 1958 and at the present time are in the process of building a new clubhouse on Williams Drive.

A member of the Central Ohio Center Concourse, they compete with Columbus, Lancaster, Zanesville, Massillon, Marion and Mansfield for racing honors.

The average loft usually contains from 50 to 75 birds and cost depends on the caliber of birds in the loft.

There are two series of races each year, the Old Bird Series, 100 to 600 miles, and the Young Bird Series, 100 to 300 miles. Old Bird Series consist of birds of any age while the Young Bird Series is made up of birds hatched in the current year.

In preparation for the race each bird receives a countermark on its leg which consists of a wide rubber band containing an identifying letter and number.

The birds are then placed in large shipping crates and transported to Columbus. Each loft has a special timing clock and once the birds are crated all clocks are started and sealed.

TRANSPORTED by vehicles to the origin of the race the birds are released for the trip back to the loft. Each loft is then notified of time of release.

As soon as the bird arrives at the loft the countermark band is placed in the timer clock which stamps the exact time of arrival.

Speed is calculated in yards per minute and each loft is measured to find the distance from the various race points to home.

Top 4 Teams Clash Today In College World Series

OMAHA Neb. (AP) — The form chart was never better for the double elimination College World Series, which enters the nitty-gritty fourth round Tuesday with the nation's top four teams remaining in the field.

Only No. 2 Texas, 39-6, is unbeaten after defeating No. 3 Florida State 5-1 Monday night. The Longhorns, with an eight-game winning streak, take on No. 1 Southern California, 40-13, in today's second game of a two-nighter. The opener pits Florida State, 47-8, against No. 4 Ohio U. 33-5.

Should Texas down USC, the Trojans would be out and the Longhorns only one victory away from the championship. The tourney may end Wednesday but could stretch to Thursday.

Only four times previously has a team gone unbeaten to sweep to the title.

Ohio's Bobcats, who upset USC 4-1 in Friday's first round and then were beaten 7-2 by Texas, are the only newcomers to the world series.

The Trojans are in their 12th appearance and have won five times, the last in 1968.

It's Texas' 14th trip. The Longhorns won in 1949 and 1950, the only team ever to take consecutive championships.

Florida State is back for the fifth time, but its best showing was fourth place in 1962.

Although nicked for 10 hits, Burt Hooten a sophomore right-hander, stifled Florida State 5-1 Monday night with 12 strikeouts. He didn't issue a walk in boosting his record to 12-1 and also singled home a run.

Southern California cashed in on wild pitches and walks to tally four runs in the fifth inning and eliminate Dartmouth 6-1.

Craig Perkins clouted a 390-foot homer for the Trojans and freshman Eric Raich got the victory, scattering nine hits. He fanned 13.

Ohio U. ousted Iowa State 9-6 with Tony Gray's triple and Terry Raszka's double good for four runs in a 11-hit attack.

Jim Nelson, Pirates Stop Dodgers, 5-2

By HERSHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jim Nelson got the San Francisco Giants in his major league debut and the Los Angeles Dodgers in his first start despite an aching shoulder that's threatening to make him a pain in the neck to National League hitters.

The 22-year-old right-hander, who made the major league scene with the Pittsburgh Pirates only last week, checked the Dodgers on five hits and one earned run in seven innings-plus

Monday night and came away a 5-2 victor.

Nelson, who had pitched six scoreless innings in two previous relief stints, was tapped because the Pirates' four regular starters all worked over the weekend.

St. Louis held off San Diego 5-4 in the only other National League game while Houston's scheduled contest at Philadelphia was rained out.

In the American League, the Baltimore Orioles had their lead in the East Division trimmed to 2 1/2 games over the idle New York Yankees when Milwaukee dumped them 9-6. Elsewhere, Minnesota clipped Washington 5-3, Cleveland edged California 3-2 in 12 innings, Oakland battered Detroit 12-7 and Kansas City overtook Boston 7-6. The Chicago White Sox also had the night off.

Nelson debuted last week against the Giants by fanning Willie Mays and getting Willie McCovey to hit into a double play. "I threw a couple of pitches before I realized it was Mays," he said.

The 6-foot, 180-pounder developed a sore shoulder in the International League and big league therapy hasn't cleared it up.

"It ached a little from the fourth inning," he said. "I've been to 10 different doctors. Half think it's tendonitis and half are baffled."

So were the Dodgers after getting a look at Nelson's palm ball, which he says he's "not afraid to throw to anybody."

The Pirates built a 4-0 lead in the first two innings off loser Joe Moeller. Willie Stargell belted his 14th homer, a prodigious shot into the center field seats in the seventh.

Matty Alou's double, an in-field out and an error on a grounder gave Pittsburgh a 1-0 lead in the first. The Pirates scored three in the second. Fred Patek's sacrifice fly with the bases loaded accounted for one run, Nelson singled for another and the third came in on a single by Richie Hebner.

Roberto Pena's three-run double highlighted a six-run explosion in the eighth inning that lifted Milwaukee from a 6-3 deficit to victory over Baltimore. It was the Orioles' ninth setback in the last 15 games.

Although the Brewers nicked Mike Cuellar for two runs in the first inning and Mike Hegan hit a solo homer in the sixth, the Orioles seemed to be home free after Merv Rettenmund socked a grand slam homer in the first and Chico Salmon a two-run shot in the sixth.

But Tommy Harper's bunt single, a walk and Ted Savage's single kayoed Cuellar in the eighth and Eddie Watt yielded a pinch single to Tito Francona.

Pete Richert brought his 0.90 earned run average out of the bullpen and struck out Russ Snyder but the Brewers pulled a double steal and Ted Kubiak was purposely passed before Pena came through. Gerry McNertney's single drove in the final run.

Harmon Killebrew brought the Twins from behind with a three-run homer in the seventh inning his 16th, and they opened a 4 1/2-game lead over the Angels in the AL West. Frank Howard homered for the Senators, his 19th.

Jack Heidemann, who doubled and scored in the first inning, singled home the winning run in the 12th following a pair of two-out walks as the Indians shaded the Angels. Heidemann had a double and three singles, giving him 10 hits in 16 at-bats since being inserted in the leadoff spot Saturday.

Eddie Leon's homer gave the Indians a 2-0 lead but the Angels tied it with two runs in the ninth off Sam McDowell before suffering their fifth defeat in six games.

A grand slam homer by Frank Fernandez highlighted a six-run third inning that carried Oakland past Detroit. Fernandez connected off Mickey Lolich, who has a sore back and was pitching in relief for the first time in more than a year.

Rick Monday also homered

for the A's while Dick McAuliffe's grand slam was one of three Tiger homers. Willie Horton and Al Kaline hit the others.

The Royals rallied three times to beat the Red Sox. Two-run homers by Pat Kelly in the fourth and Ed Kirkpatrick in the fifth wiped out early Boston leads and KC finally won it with three in the ninth.

The runs came across on singles by Lou Piniella and Paul Schaaf, Jackie Hernandez' safe bunt, an error, Kelly's sacrifice fly and a game-winning single by Amos Otis.

Joe Torre's eighth-inning homer proved to be the winning run for the Cardinals against the Padres but St. Louis needed sharp defensive plays by shortstop and catcher Jim Kennedy.

Kennedy threw out Dave Campbell trying to go from second to third on a seventh-inning grounder and Nate Colbert followed with a wasted double. Simmons picked pinch runner Jose Arcia off second in the eighth after two leadoff singles and the Padres settled for one run when Ramon Webster singled and Ron Slocum doubled.

Reds To Seek 4th Straight Win; Face New York Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds will be seeking their fourth straight victory over the New York Mets tonight when the clubs open a two-game series.

The Reds, who have been holding around a 10-game edge in the Western Division of the National League, have beaten the Mets in all three games at Crosley Field this year but have not played them in New York.

Jim Merritt, who paces the Reds in triumphs with 11, will start against Jim McAndrew, 2-4. Merritt hurled a six-hitter against the Mets early in June as the Reds took a 10-2 decision.

On Wednesday night, Wayne Simpson will oppose Gary Gentry, 6-4. Simpson, 9-1, hurled a complete game as the Reds won 5-1 over New York after the 10-2 game.

Last year when the Mets won the World Series, the two teams split the season series six games to six.

The Mets stand 30-29 this year and in second place in the Eastern Division behind Chicago.

Veteran major leaguer Ty Cline is expected to arrive in time for the game tonight for the Reds. They acquired him Monday from Montreal which obtained outfielder Clyde Ma-shore from Cincinnati's Indianapolis farm club. Cline, who has played for five different teams, batted only twice for the Expos this year before undergoing internal surgery.

Cline, 31, an outfielder, hit .239 in 101 games with the Expos last year. He recorded his best average—.302—with the old Milwaukee Braves in 1964.

The Reds sent utility man Jay Ward to Indianapolis outright to make room for Cline.

Carty Given Big Write-In Vote For All-Star Team

NEW YORK (AP) —Hot-hitting Rico Carty of the Atlanta Braves has received a swarm of write-in votes to place third among outfield candidates in early balloting for the National League All-Star team.

Carty, whose .404 batting average is tops in the majors, was omitted from the list of All-Star nominees selected by NL managers and player representatives before the start of the season.

But after the first week of voting by baseball fans across the country, he had picked up 71,511 write-in ballots, compared to 170,123 for teammate Hank Aaron, the top vote-getter, and 72,846 for San Francisco's Willie Mays, the No. 2 man in the outfield poll.

Catcher Johnny Bench and third baseman Tony Perez of Cincinnati's West Division leaders trailed Aaron in the over-all voting with 142,629 and 89,337, respectively.

Shortstop Don Kessinger of the Chicago Cubs received 76,298. Willie McCovey of San Francisco was leader among first basemen with 57,452 and Chicago's Glenn Beckert topped the second baseman with 61,233.

The early returns, released Monday, represented some 242,000 votes cast through last Thursday by the fans, who are picking the All-Star starters, exclusive of the pitchers, for the first time since 1957. Players selected the teams from 1958 through last season.

The first America League returns will be released Friday.

Pitchers and reserves for the July 14 classic at Cincinnati will be chosen by the rival managers, Gil Hodges of the New York Mets and Earl Weaver of Baltimore.

The closest NL races in the early voting were at first base, where McCovey held a 2,800 margin over St. Louis' Richie Allen, and in the outfield, where Carty's write-in votes put him about 3,000 ahead of the Reds' Pete Rose for the number three spot.

Except for Carty, write-in candidates were lagging far behind. Jim Hickman of the Cubs, third behind Carty and Perez in the batting race, was not among the top eight vote-getters for the outfield. Los Angeles' Bill Grabarkewitz, San Diego's Clarence Gaston, New York's Art Shamsky and San Francisco's Dick Dietz and Ken Henderson, all among the Top Ten in batting, received few write-ins. All were omitted from the ballot.

Conversely, catchers Tim McCarver of Philadelphia and Randy Hundley of Chicago and third baseman Mike Shannon of St. Louis picked up more than 11,000 votes apiece although each has missed much of the season with injuries. McCarver, out of action since May 2 with a broken hand, was third among the catcher candidates with 20,435 votes.

Hill's, Hap's Are Victors In Mosquito

Hill Implement tagged Barnhill's with their first loss of the season, 10-5, while Hap's blistered Circle Auto Parts, 23-15, to keep up a perfect 2-0 record.

Mark Ranck nailed a homer for the laundrymen but gave up nine hits on the mound, allowing ten runs. Hill's fielded three double plays in the tilt and winning hurler, Jim Brown, held the Barnhill "g" to seven hits.

Jeff Strawser, wielding the big bat, was the hero of the Hap's win over Circle Auto Parts. Strawser blasted a homer, a triple and two doubles in five trips to the box while Randy Hannigan tagged a triple, and Brad Willoughby, Doug Young, Todd Brady, and Carl DeBruin helped out with doubles.

Together the Hap's hustlers took Circle hurler, Caudill, for 15 hits and 14 walks. Caudill fanned six batters. Brady was the winning Hap's pitcher. Brady allowed only five hits and four walks while whiffing ten.

Brad Gifford banged a triple for the CAP squad while Mark Metcalf, Charles Adams and Johnson had doubles.

ATLANTA (AP) — It was a rough first scrimmage for Pistol Pete Maravich as the Atlanta Hawks opened their 1970 rookie camp here.

Maravich, the National Basketball Association team's $2 million sensation, was slowed by a sprained ankle at the scrimmage Monday.

"I sprained my ankle last week at a basketball camp in North Carolina and I'm having a tough time going hard on it," he said apologetically after the workout.

LOS ALAMITOS, Calif. (AP) — Labor problems which closed Santa Anita Park for 27 days last winter have now forced postponement of the scheduled June 23 opening of Los Alamitos Race Course's 78-night quarter-horse racing season.

Track President Frank Vesels Jr. announced his decision to delay the opening indefinitely after Monday's negotiations with the Service Employees International Union broke down.

The Syracuse Chiefs increased their International League lead to two full games Monday night by trouncing Toledo 9-2 while Tidewater, the second-place team, lost to Columbus, 3-2.

The Chiefs overcame a 2-1 deficit in the fourth inning, with four runs to clinch their 19th victory in 24 games. They also added four in the eighth, capped by Charlie Sands' two-run homer.

Cleveland Indians Turn Back California Angels; Win 3-2

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Cleveland shortstop Jack Heidemann has a simple explanation for his spectacular hitting since Manager Alvin Dark moved him to the leadoff spot in the batting order last Saturday.

"I found out what was going on," said Heidemann Monday night after his 12th inning single following a pair of walks drove in the run that beat the California Angels, 3-2.

Heidemann had four hits in six appearances to give him 10 for 16 in the last three games. "Since I'm batting first I'm getting pitches to hit," explained the young shortstop who had occupied the eighth spot in the batting order most of the season. "In the eighth position you don't get anything with the pitcher coming up next."

The game was the second Heidemann won for the Indians against the Angels. It was his eighth-inning double that gave the Tribe a 6-4 victory at Anaheim June 7.

Sam McDowell who pitched the first nine innings for the Indians Monday night failed in his effort to win his ninth game, but was pleased and smiling in the noisy Cleveland clubhouse.

"I changed my style tonight because I figured the Angels are keeping a book on me," the left-hander said.

"I've beaten the Angels with one and two-hitters in the past, but the next time I throw the same stuff they may beat me," McDowell said he stayed mostly with his fastball and slider in holding the Angels to three hits in the first eight innings. He struck out four, raising his career total to 1,800.

Angels Manager Lefty Phillips was amused at McDowell's suggestion that his team was keeping a book on him.

"I have enough trouble keeping a book on opposing hitters without worrying about the pitchers," he said.

The defeat was the third straight and the fifth in six games for the Angels, runners-up in the American League West.

California tied the score with two runs in the ninth. A leadoff double by Alex Johnson, a walk to Billy Cowan and Tommy Reynolds' single loaded the bases. Chico Ruiz popped out and then Joe Azcue, a former Indian, batted for Tom Egan and hit a single to center, scoring Johnson and Cowan.

The Indians got a run in the first inning when Heidemann led off with a double, took third on a sacrifice and scored on Ray Fosse's single.

Eddie Leon hit his fourth home run of the season in the third inning to make it 2-0.

Rich Hand, who won his first game of the season in beating the Angels June 7, will start for the Indians in the second game of the series tonight. He will be opposed by Andy Messersmith.

Tri County Runs Midgets

WEST CHESTER, Ohio (AP) — Tri County Speedway, being boycotted by area drivers and car owners, has accepted a U.S. Auto Club offer to run midget features beginning July 18.

"We decided to close the place as far as the late model and sports sedan boys are concerned and we contacted USAC and took their offer," Bill Redwine, speedway president, said Monday night.

The drivers and owners, members of the Tri-State Racing Association, have been boycotting the track for about two weeks, forcing cancellation of regular Wednesday and Saturday night programs. Among other demands, the association has been seeking increased purses.

The midget races will be run for eight straight Thursday nights.

Tri County will also hold as scheduled USAC stock and sprint car races and Auto Racing Club of America events.

Casper Eyes Rough Time For Open

CHASKA, Minn. (AP) — "Rain," urged Billy Casper, gazing up at the dark and ominous clouds over Hazeltine National golf course.

"The softer the ground the better I'll feel," said the Masters champion. "I might jar the club into some hard ground and be on the next plane for California."

Casper arrived at Hazeltine Monday with an injured hand, a swollen jaw and the feeling that he might be too rusty to stay with the competition at the U.S. Open Championship, which begins Thursday.

Casper injured his hand six weeks ago playing an exhibition match in Japan.

"It hurts mostly when I hit the short irons," he said. "Fortunately, Hazeltine is a course that doesn't require a lot of short iron shots."

But, he said, "I don't know if I can swing through heavy rough. Hard, dry ground would really be a problem."

Spectators asked Casper about the swelling in his left jaw.

"You should have seen me last week," he replied. "I looked like a squirrel with a winter's supply of nuts in his mouth."

Some people can really talk you to death.

Drivers who insist on facing their audience while they talk—instead of the road ahead—can be deadly bores. Even their funny stories can turn tragic in a hurry if the car in front stops suddenly. A sudden curve can kill a punch line—and the joker—instantly.

No one is safe with drivers like this. Neither passengers or pedestrians...nor other drivers. If you know someone who has this deadly habit, straighten him out or refuse to ride with him. If you think sometimes you're guilty yourself, think about the consequences.

Your new car dealer wants to see our highways safe. He wants to see you safe whether you're behind the wheel or just a passenger. So join the battle against careless talkers. Help them face their responsibilities—and the road ahead—and all their stories will have happy endings.

Carty Given Big Write-In Vote For All-Star Team

NEW YORK (AP) —Hot-hitting Rico Carty of the Atlanta Braves has received a swarm of write-in votes to place third among outfield candidates in early balloting for the National League All-Star team.

Carty, whose .404 batting average is tops in the majors, was omitted from the list of All-Star nominees selected by NL managers and player representatives before the start of the season.

But after the first week of voting by baseball fans across the country, he had picked up 71,511 write-in ballots, compared to 170,123 for teammate Hank Aaron, the top vote-getter, and 72,846 for San Francisco's Willie Mays, the No. 2 man in the outfield poll.

Catcher Johnny Bench and third baseman Tony Perez of Cincinnati's West Division leaders trailed Aaron in the over-all voting with 142,629 and 89,337, respectively.

Shortstop Don Kessinger of the Chicago Cubs received 76,298. Willie McCovey of San Francisco was leader among first basemen with 57,452 and Chicago's Glenn Beckert topped the second baseman with 61,233.

The early returns, released Monday, represented some 242,000 votes cast through last Thursday by the fans, who are picking the All-Star starters, exclusive of the pitchers, for the first time since 1957. Players selected the teams from 1958 through last season.

The first America League returns will be released Friday.

Pitchers and reserves for the July 14 classic at Cincinnati will be chosen by the rival managers. Gil Hodges of the New York Mets and Earl Weaver of Baltimore.

The closest NL races in the early voting were at first base, where McCovey held a 2,800 margin over St. Louis' Richie Allen, and in the outfield, where Carty's write-in votes put him about 3,000 ahead of the Reds' Pete Rose for the number three spot.

Except for Carty, write-in candidates were lagging far behind. Jim Hickman of the Cubs, third behind Carty and Perez in the batting race, was not among the top eight vote-getters for the outfield. Los Angeles' Bill Grabarkewitz, San Diego's Clarence Gaston, New York's Art Shamsky and San Francisco's Dick Dietz and Ken Henderson, all among the Top Ten in batting, received few write-ins. All were omitted from the ballot.

Conversely, catchers Tim McCarver of Philadelphia and Randy Hundley of Chicago and third baseman Mike Shannon of St. Louis picked up more than 11,000 votes apiece although each has missed much of the season with injuries. McCarver, out of action since May 2 with a broken hand, was third among the catcher candidates with 20,435 votes.

Hill's, Hap's Are Victors In Mosquito

Hill Implement tagged Barnhill's with their first loss of the season, 10-5, while Hap's blistered Circle Auto Parts, 23-15, to keep up a perfect 2-0 record.

Mark Ranck nailed a homer for the laundrymen but gave up nine hits on the mound, allowing ten runs. Hill's fielded three double plays in the tilt and winning hurler, Jim Brown, held the Barnhill "9" to seven hits.

Jeff Strawser, wielding the big bat, was the hero of the Hap's win over Circle Auto Parts. Strawser blasted a homer, a triple and two doubles in five trips to the box while Randy Hannigan tagged a triple, and Brad Willoughby, Doug Young, Todd Brady, and Carl DeBruin helped out with doubles.

Together the Hap's hustlers took Circle hurler, Caudill, for 15 hits and 14 walks. Caudill fanned six batters. Brady was the winning Hap's pitcher. Brady allowed only five hits and four walks while whiffing ten. Brad Gifford banged a triple for the CAP squad while Mark Metcalf, Charles Adams and Johnson had doubles.

Highlights In Sports World

ATLANTA (AP) — It was a rough first scrimmage for Pistol Pete Maravich as the Atlanta Hawks opened their 1970 rookie camp here.

Maravich, the National Basketball Association team's $2 million sensation, was slowed by a sprained ankle at the scrimmage Monday.

"I sprained my ankle last week at a basketball camp in North Carolina and I'm having a tough time going hard on it," he said apologetically after the workout.

LOS ALAMITOS, Calif. (AP) — Labor problems which closed Santa Anita Park for 27 days last winter have now forced postponement of the scheduled June 23 opening of Los Alamitos Race Course's 78-night quarter-horse racing season.

Track President Frank Vesels Jr. announced his decision to delay the opening indefinitely after Monday's negotiations with the Service Employees International Union broke down.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Syracuse Chiefs increased their International League lead to two full games Monday night by trouncing Toledo 9-2 while Tidewater, the second-place team, lost to Columbus, 3-2.

The Chiefs overcame a 2-1 deficit in the fourth inning, with four runs to clinch their 19th victory in 24 games. They also added four in the eighth, capped by Charlie Sands' two-run homer.

Cleveland Indians Turn Back California Angels; Win 3-2

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Cleveland shortstop Jack Heidemann has a simple explanation for his spectacular hitting since Manager Alvin Dark moved him to the leadoff spot in the batting order last Saturday.

"I found out what was going on," said Heidemann Monday night after his 12th inning single following a pair of walks drove in the run that beat the California Angels, 3-2.

Heidemann had four hits in six appearances to give him 10 for 16 in the last three games. "Since I'm batting first I'm getting pitches to hit," explained the young shortstop who had occupied the eight spot in the batting order most of the season. "In the eighth position you don't get anything with the pitcher coming up next."

The game was the second Heidemann won for the Indians against the Angels. It was his eighth-inning double that gave the Tribe a 6-4 victory at Anaheim June 7.

Sam McDowell who pitched the first nine innings for the Indians Monday night failed in his effort to win his ninth game, but was pleased and smiling in the noisy Cleveland clubhouse.

"I changed my style tonight because I figured the Angels are keeping a book on me," the left-hander said.

"I've beaten the Angels with one and two-hitters in the past, but the next time I throw the same stuff they may beat me," McDowell said he stayed mostly with his fastball and slider in holding the Angels to three hits in the first eight innings. He struck out four, raising his career total to 1,800.

Angels Manager Lefty Phillips was amused at McDowell's suggestion that his team was keeping a book on him.

"I have enough trouble keeping a book on opposing hitters without worrying about the pitchers," he said.

The defeat was the third straight and the fifth in six games for the Angels, runners-up in the American League West.

California tied the score with two runs in the ninth. A leadoff double by Alex Johnson, a walk to Billy Cowan and Tommy Reynolds' single loaded the bases. Chico Ruiz popped out and then Joe Azcue, a former Indian, batted for Tom Egan and hit a single to center, scoring Johnson and Cowan.

The Indians got a run in the first inning when Heidemann led off with a double, took third on a sacrifice and scored on Ray Fosse's single.

Eddie Leon hit his fourth home run of the season in the third inning to make it 2-0.

Rich Hand, who won his first game of the season in beating the Angels June 7, will start for the Indians in the second game of the series tonight. He will be opposed by Andy Messersmith.

Tri County Runs Midgets

WEST CHESTER, Ohio (AP) — Tri County Speedway, being boycotted by area drivers and car owners, has accepted a U.S. Auto Club offer to run midget features beginning July 18.

"We decided to close the place as far as the late model and sports sedan boys are concerned and we contacted USAC and took their offer," Bill Redwine, speedway president, said Monday night.

The drivers and owners, members of the Tri-State Racing Association, have been boycotting the track for about two weeks, forcing cancellation of regular Wednesday and Saturday night programs. Among other demands, the association has been seeking increased purses.

The midget races will be run for eight straight Thursday nights.

Tri County will also hold a scheduled USAC stock and sprint car races and Auto Racing Club of America events.

Casper Eyes Rough Time For Open

CHASKA, Minn. (AP) — "Rain," urged Billy Casper, gazing up at the dark and ominous clouds over Hazeltine National golf course.

"The softer the ground the better I'll feel," said the Masters champion. "I might jar the club into some hard ground and be on the next plane for California."

Casper arrived at Hazeltine Monday with an injured hand, a swollen jaw and the feeling that he might be too rusty to stay with the competition at the U.S. Open Championship, which begins Thursday.

Casper injured his hand six weeks ago playing an exhibition match in Japan.

"It hurts mostly when I hit the short irons," he said. "Fortunately, Hazeltine is a course that doesn't require a lot of short iron shots."

But, he said, "I don't know if I can swing through heavy rough. Hard, dry ground would really be a problem."

Spectators asked Casper about the swelling in his left jaw.

"You should have seen me last week," he replied. "I looked like a squirrel with a winter's supply of nuts in his mouth."

"Valley Of History" Tour Leads To Tuscarawas County

EDITOR'S NOTE: One of a series of short tours of Ohio travel attractions prepared by Columbus Auto Club Travel Department for the Herald.

A drive through scenic Tuscarawas County can be a trip into many yesterdays, enhanced this year by the opening of a major new feature, the historical drama, "Trumpet in the Land."

In this "valley of history" are restorations covering the period from Ohio's first village, Schoenbrunn, in 1772 (31 years before statehood), to the dissolution of Zoar, for many years a successful commune, in 1898.

The drama, performed outdoors in a new 1650 seat amphitheatre built with state funds, centers on the period when David Zeisberger led Indian and Moravian settlers to Schoenbrunn, which had to be abandoned five years later when caught between hostile Revolutionary War armies.

Written by Pulitzer Prize playwright Paul Green, the drama will play nightly, except Monday, from July 3 to Sept. 7, at 8:45. Admission charge.

The authentic restoration of part of Schoenbrunn is nearby, including the church, school and 13 of 60 log cabins. The village cemetery, God's Acre, is preserved. A museum and picnic area are on the grounds. Open until dark. Free.

Zoar survived for 81 years, but thrived only under its first leader, Joseph Baumber. It declined after his death in 1833. Open are his palatial home, "King's Palace," newly

Also in the area are Fort Laurens Memorial, site of the only Revolutionary War fort in Ohio, and Gnadenbutten, where 96 Christian Indians were massacred by crazed white soldiers in 1782.

On Oct. 2-3, the Ohio Swiss Cheese Festival, one of state's best, will be held at tiny Sugar Creek, an authentically Alpine community. Swiss music, yodeling, costumes, street dancing, plus cheese and other foods from 18 area dairy plants, are featured.

At Dover is the unique workshop and museum of Ernest Warther, nationally known for his wood carvings including tiny working models of complicated mechanisms. Open 8 to 5 daily. Admission charge.

Chamber Starts Drive To Save Plant

Chillicothe Chamber of Commerce has taken steps to save Wear-Ever in their city.

Following the union's rejection of an agreement Saturday, the Wear-Ever has proceeded with plans to phase out production of the plant that employs 850 persons.

The chamber cited a section of the union constitution which says, "It shall require a two-thirds vote of the membership at a regular or special meeting to override the decision of the executive board."

The chamber maintains that neither contract votes "provided the two-thirds majority."

A coupon drive has been launched by the chamber who asks area residents to send the coupons to the Alcoa president (Wear-Ever parent company) and to the president of Aluminum Workers International Union saying, "we are in favor of keeping Wear-Ever open."

One hundred and fifty employees have been laid off. An additional 36 were to be relieved of their duties Monday with 23 to be laid off Friday.

Boyd Named To New Teaching Position

Richard A. Boyd, former basketball coach and teacher at Circleville High School, has been employed as assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum and instruction by the Warren Board of Education, Warren.

Boyd was named Circleville's "Outstanding Young Man" by the Circleville Jaycees in 1957 and spent six years at Circleville. He has spent the past 12 years in the Warren system as a teacher.

Apollo . . .

weeks before the April 11 launching. Technicians turned on a heater in the tank to convert the liquid to gas to vent it overboard. They placed 65 volts on the circuit, welding shut two thermal switches designed to take only 28 volts.

The switches were intended to cut off the heater when the temperature reached 80 degrees. Instead the temperature rose unchecked for an eight-hour period to perhaps 1,000 degrees. This baked Teflon coatings and exposed bare wires.

The board said the explosion occurred when two of these wires apparently touched during the flight, causing a spark that ignited the Teflon in the pure oxygen environment. The fire raised the temperature in the tank, bursting it.

Astronauts James A. Lovell Jr., Fred W. Haise Jr. and John L. Swigert Jr. made it back to earth in four danger-filled days, using the oxygen and propulsion systems of the lunar landing craft which was attached to the command ship.

The presence of the inadequate thermal switches was blamed on a number of factors.

In 1962, when Apollo was still in the planning stage, North American Rockwell issued specifications to Beech which called for the use of 23 volts DC power.

In 1965, North American issued a revised specification which stated heaters in the oxygen tank should use a 65-volt power supply because that was the power used in launch pad testing at Cape Kennedy. Beech ordered switches for the tanks but did not change the specifications to 65 volts, the review board said.

Commenting on the tank design, the board said all parties failed to take into account warnings issued after the Apollo 1 fire about the dangers of ignition sources and combustible materials in a pure oxygen environment.

The report said the use of fan motors and electrical wiring "in supercritical oxygen was a questionable practice," and said the tank "contained a hazardous combination of materials and potential ignition sources . . . the design was such that it was difficult to insure against these hazards."

Cortright said that after the Apollo 1 fire, engineers concentrated on the command and lunar modules, the two manned vehicles, and gave less thought to the unmanned service module.

He also said launch pad personnel were remiss in not checking the temperatures of the heaters during the pre-launch test.

Among recommendations NASA will consider are removing the fans from the tanks and placing the heating and wiring outside. If wiring is allowed to enter, it will be shielded by metal, or will be designed with fire-breaks to prevent the spread of flames.

Judge Nixes New Trial Bid

Judge William Ammer in a written opinion has overruled a petition by Daniel Ealey to vacate a sentence against him for murder of two Williamsport men.

Ealey filed the petition on the basis he had ineffective counsel. Ealey was found guilty by a three judge panel and sentenced to the Ohio Penitentiary Dec. 20, 1965. He was accused of the murder of Gail Lewis, 40, and Emmanuel Baldwin, 55, both of Williamsport, on December 20, 1964.

His attorney at the first trial was Emory Smith. Richard Gerhardt represented him in his bid for a new trial.

The manufacturers' profits report released Monday, however, added to the gloom of government officials who privately admit economic policies are living up to expectations.

After tax profits during the first quarter of this year were $6.9 billion on sales of $170.4 billion, the lowest profit margin since the third quarter of 1967.

Sales in the first quarter were 5 per cent above the preceding quarter, but profits dropped 14 per cent.

The heaviest impact was felt by manufacturers of durable goods: automobiles, airplanes, metal working machinery and furniture.

Profits of nondurable industries such as food and clothing dropped less than 11 per cent, from $4.2 billion to $3.7 billion.

White House Redecorating Being Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some of the White House redecorating Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis had done when she was first lady is going to be changed by the new curator, Clement Conger.

Conger said Monday he was not satisfied with the famous Blue Room as left by Mrs. Onassis, who changed its blue wallpaper to two tones of cream striped satin and encircled the room with a blue draped valance.

The curator said he did not like the striped pattern and thought the room should be bluer.

Conger added that he will replace the purplish shade Mrs. Onassis ordered for the next-door Red Room with something redder.

Ammer To Hear School Case

Pickaway County Common Pleas Judge William Ammer will preside at a June 24 hearing in Adams County Court. The assignment was made by the Chief Justice of the Ohio Supreme Court when judges of involved counties of Adams, Brown and Highland disqualified themselves from a preliminary hearing.

The hearing involves a petition requesting a temporary restraining order against the Adams County Board of Education and others who seek to consolidate Adams County's five school districts, plus adjacent territories, into a single school district.

Plaintiffs are two taxpayers residing in the Manchester School District and members of the Manchester Board of Education.

If Judge Ammer sees merit in petition, no further moves in consolidation are expected until after a possible final hearing, according to the report.

ers for the 61-year-old diplomat's freedom apparently were met when Brazilian television stations relayed photographs and reports of the prisoners stepping off an airliner in Algiers Monday night. But six hours after their plane landed, there still was no sign of Von Holleben. False tips and rumors kept police and newsmen speeding to various parts of Rio, only to find no trace of the ambassador.

About 50 newsmen watched the ambassador's residence, where Von Holleben's wife and two sons waited, while another 20 waited at the embassy.

As the night went on and the ambassador did not turn up, tension mounted among members of the embassy staff. But they remained outwardly optimistic.

"They most likely will let him go in the morning so they can escape into the rush hour traffic," said a secretary.

The leftist terrorists who kidnapped Von Holleben last Thursday had said he would be released when local newspapers and radio and television stations relayed the word that the prisoners had arrived safely in Mexico, Cuba or Algeria.

A jetliner of Brazil's Varig Airline took the prisoners under heavy guard to Algeria. They included six women; four children accompanied them into exile. Algerian officials gave them a warm welcome and said they would be given asylum. Under a decree last September after the abduction of U.S. Ambassador C. Burke Elbrick, all 40 lost their Brazilian citizenship and were barred from returning to their homeland.

"This is an empty gesture," said the oldest member of the group, 58-year-old Apolonia de Carvalho. "They know perfectly well that most of us are determined to return to our country and continue our struggle until final victory."

During a two-hour news conference at the Algiers airport, the prisoners said they had been tortured while in jail and had been led to believe they were about to be executed before they were put on the plane.

"We were taken to a shooting range with our eyes bandaged," said De Carvalho. "The army men shouted and manipulated their weapons in such a way as to make us believe we were about to be shot."

"Valley Of History" Tour
Leads To Tuscarawas County

EDITOR'S NOTE: One of a series of short tours of Ohio travel attractions prepared by Columbus Auto Club Travel Department for the Herald.

A drive through scenic Tuscarawas County can be a trip into many yesterdays, enhanced this year by the opening of a major new feature, the historical drama, "Trumpet in the Land."

In this "valley of history" are restorations covering the period from Ohio's first village, Schoenbrunn, in 1772 (31 years before statehood), to the dissolution of Zoar, for many years a successful commune, in 1898.

The drama, performed outdoors in a new 1650 seat amphitheatre built with state funds, centers on the period when David Zieglers led Indian and Moravian settlers to Schoenbrunn, which had to be abandoned five years later when caught between hostile Revolutionary War armies.

Written by Pulitzer Prize playwright Paul Green, the drama will play nightly, except Monday, from July 3 to Sept. 7, at 8:45. Admission charge.

The authentic restoration of part of Schoenbrunn is nearby, including the church, school and 13 of 60 log cabins. The village cemetery, God's Acre, is preserved. A museum and picnic area are on the grounds. Open until dark. Free.

Zoar survived for 81 years, but thrived only under its first leader, Joseph Baumber. It declined after his death in 1853. Open are his palatial home, "King's Palace," newly weeks before the April 11 launching. Technicians turned on a heater in the tank to convert the liquid to gas to vent it overboard. They placed 65 volts on the circuit, welding shut two thermal switches designed to take only 28 volts.

The switches were intended to cut off the heater when the temperature reached 80 degrees. Instead the temperature rose unchecked for an eight-hour period to perhaps 1,000 degrees. This baked Teflon coatings and exposed bare wires.

The board said the explosion occurred when two of these wires apparently touched during the flight, causing a spark that ignited the Teflon in the pure oxygen environment. The fire raised the temperature in the tank, bursting it.

Astronauts James A. Lovell Jr., Fred W. Haise Jr. and John L. Swigert Jr. made it back to earth in four danger-filled days, using the oxygen and propulsion systems of the lunar landing craft which was attached to the command ship.

The presence of the inadequate thermal switches was blamed on a number of factors. In 1962, when Apollo was still in the planning stage, North American Rockwell issued specifications to Beech which called for the use of 28 volts DC power.

In 1965, North American issued a revised specification which stated heaters in the oxygen tank should use a 65-volt power supply because that was the power used in launch pad testing at Cape Kennedy. Beech ordered switches for the tanks but did not change the specifications to 65 volts, the review board said.

Commenting on the tank design, the board said all parties failed to take into account warnings issued after the Apollo 1 fire about the dangers of ignition sources and combustible materials in a pure oxygen environment.

The report said the use of fan motors and electrical wiring "in supercritical oxygen" was a questionable practice, and said the tank "contained a hazardous combination of materials and potential ignition sources . . . the design was such that it was difficult to insure against these hazards."

Cortright said that after the Apollo 1 fire, engineers concentrated on the command and lunar modules, the two manned vehicles, and gave less thought to the unmanned service module.

He also said launch pad personnel were remiss in not checking the temperatures of the heaters during the pre-launch test. A month recommendations NASA will consider are removing the fans from the tanks and placing the heating and wiring outside. If wiring is allowed to enter, it will be shielded by metal, or will be designed with fire-breaks to prevent the spread of flames.

Judge Nixes
New Trial Bid

Judge William Ammer in a written opinion has overruled a petition by Daniel Ealey to vacate a sentence against him for murder of two Williamsport men.

Ealey filed the petition on the basis he had ineffective council. Ealey was found guilty by a three judge panel and sentenced to the Ohio Penitentiary Dec. 20, 1965. He was accused of the murder of Gail Lewis, 40, and Emmanuel Baldwin, 55, both of Williamsport, on December 20, 1964.

His attorney at the first trial was Emory Smith. Richard Gerhardt represented him in his bid for a new trial.

On the plane, he continued, they were tied to their seats for the 10-hour flight and were released only as the craft taxied to a halt.

In addition to the prisoners and the children, the plane carried a 12-member crew and 19 government security agents. The crew was permitted to disembark, but Algerian authorities made the Brazilian police stay aboard while the jet was refueled. Within an hour, the plane took off again for Brazil.

One of the woman prisoners was carried off the plane and placed in a wheel chair. She was Vera Silvia de Araujo Magalhaes, 22, who Brazilian police had said was paralyzed when she was shot at the time of her arrest last March. She said electric shock torture had temporarily paralyzed her legs.

Von Holleben was the ninth diplomat involved in the series of Latin-American political kidnappings that began with the abduction of Elbrick last September. Besides Elbrick and Von Holleben, one other diplomat has been kidnapped for ransom in Brazil, the Japanese consul in Sao Paulo.

Count Karl von Spreiti, the West German ambassador to Guatemala, was killed by his abductors after the Guatemalan government refused to release 17 prisoners.
